

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

William, and thirdly, as they existed at the time of the survey. Repeated instances occur of the description of manors and lands which were at the time waste and valueless, but where their former condition is nevertheless detailed.* Besides, the devastations of William were neither confined to the northward of the Tees, nor did they extend to Westmorland and Cumberland. If on this ground Durham, and perhaps Northumberland, might have been omitted, we should have expected the exclusion of the North Riding of Yorkshire, but not of the western counties. The fact is that the undescribed district comprised the Earldoms of Northumberland and Cumberland, both dependencies of the English Crown, but neither of them as yet merged in the general polity of England, whose Kings did not interfere with the internal concerns of either province. They neither afforded the materials, nor held out the inducements for inquiry, and were naturally excluded from the survey.

After Domesday-Book, with the exception of an isolated Pipe-Roll of the thirty-first year of Henry the First, we have no Records of an earlier date than the accession of Henry the Second.† The regular series of the Pipe-Rolls commences in the second year of this King's reign, and portions of the preceding annual Roll have been preserved in the compilation known as the "Red Book of the Exchequer."

In the thirteenth year of this reign a most important document was framed, which has been published from a transcript in another volume in the Exchequer, called the "Black Book."‡ This document consists of a collection of Returns made by the Barons throughout England in obedience to a precept from the King, requiring them to set forth the number of Knights' fees held by each, distinguishing those granted previous to the reign of King Stephen from those of later date, and specifying the names of the Knights

* See Sir Henry Ellis's Introduction to Domesday-Book.

† A few enrolments and copies of charters belonging to this period are still extant in the Cartæ Antiquæ, Monastic Charterlaries, the several Exchequer compilations, &c., and some originals in the British Museum and elsewhere.

who held under them. The object of this Return was to ascertain the amount to be contributed by each Baron towards an Aid for the marriage of the King's daughter, the contribution being regulated in each case by the number of Knights'-fees. The necessity of such a Return shows that no regular series of ancient Pipe-Rolls at that time existed, for if such had been the case, they would have supplied the information in a still more authentic form. There is, however, no reason to doubt that the system of Pipe-Roll accounts had been uninterrupted from the thirty-first of Henry the First, as it had undoubtedly existed before that time, references to former Rolls occurring both in the single Roll of the former reign and the earliest of Henry the Second, extending back, in both instances, for more than one year.

These Returns throw much light on the distribution of landed property in Northumberland, as well as in the more southern counties, but are entirely silent as regards Cumberland, where land was held by a different tenure. The only two Knights'-fees in Cumberland which contributed to this aid, were those held by Robert de Vaux, whose father, Hubert de Vaux, had received a grant of the Barony of Gilsland, to be held by this service, from Henry the Second himself.

The next Record of the nature of a general survey is one compiled in the reign of King John, and published, with a mixture of more recent matter, in the volume called the "Testa de Neville." It is founded on inquisitions taken in each county, and presents, for the first time, a view of the landed property within the ancient Earldom of Carlisle.* It not only furnishes the name of the existing possessor of each Barony, but of the original grantee from whom he derived his title, and the source of the grant. It forms, in short, the foundation of the territorial history of Cumberland, and is especially valuable as a means of correcting the gross errors contained in an ancient manuscript, "Chronicon Cumbriæ," formerly belonging to the monastery of Wetheral, and printed in the "Monasticon," on the authority of which undue reliance has been placed by the modern historians of Cumberland.

Still the amount of available information regarding Westmorland and Cumberland is much more scanty than it is with respect to any other counties, and the object of the present publication is to supply, as far as possible, the deficiency.

The Pipe Rolls for Northumberland, to the close of the reign of Henry the Third, have been already given to the world by the late Rev. John Hodgson, the accomplished Historian of that County. The Records in the present volume extend only to the death of King John, embracing that period which is most destitute of authentic historical and topographical information. On a future occasion they may perhaps be continued through the succeeding reign, and thus be made to correspond with the Northumberland series. In the mean time it has been thought expedient, that the publication should include the early Pipe Rolls of Durham, the only other county which is excluded from the Domesday survey. These are few in number, the Crown having no interest in the revenues of the Palatinate of Durham, except during a vacancy of the See. The Westmorland Rolls do not embrace the entire reign of John, the revenues of that county having become, by grant, the property of a subject.

In order correctly to understand the circumstances of the several counties to which the documents in the present volume refer, it will be useful to take a brief review of the political changes to which the Anglo-Saxon Kingdom of Northumberland was subjected, from its establishment under Ida, to the final adjustment of the boundary between England and Scotland, by which this territory was divided, in nearly equal proportions, between the two states.

On the death of Ida we find Bernicia and Deira administered as distinct Kingdoms, the former remaining under the government of the family of its founder, the latter under Ella. Their united area, however, appears to have constituted but a small part of the Kingdom which was consolidated by Ethelfrith under the name of Northumberland. Bernicia, as we collect from the remains of the British bards, and the miscellaneous matter appended to the "Historia Brittonum," attributed to Nennius, was environed by warlike native tribes, who confined the Saxons within narrow limits. The names of four kings are mentioned as waging war against Husa, the predecessor of Ethelfrith on the throne of Bernicia, Urien, Morcant, Roderick, and Guallane. Urien besieged the Saxons in Holy Island, in the immediate vicinity of the royal residence of Bamburgh, and when so engaged was treacherously slain at the instance of Morcant.

Reged was the name of Urien's kingdom, or of its capital, and Morcant, or, as he is called by Joceline in his life of Saint Kentigern, Morken, was King of Strathclyde. Roderick was Morcant's successor, and Guallane was probably the successor of Urien, who must have attained an advanced age at the period of his assassination. Nennius mentions his conflicts with Theodric, the son of Ida, and Taliessen and other bards celebrate his wars with Flamdwyn, whom Mr. Sharon Turner identifies with Ida himself. In an engagement with Flamdwyn his son Owen, already a distinguished warrior, perished.

It is clear that Bernicia comprised only the open country adjacent to the coast, and that at least two British kingdoms, Reged and Strathclyde, existed to the westward.

Neither did Deira extend very far into the interior, the British state of Elmete forming its western boundary, a district still recognised under its ancient designation, and situated in the West Riding of Yorkshire.*

Ethelfrith, having united the two provinces, was in possession of the entire sea-coast from the Forth to the Humber, but the central and western districts remained unsubdued. He had still scope, according to Bede, for the subjugation of more British tribes than had fallen to the lot of any other Anglo-Saxon conqueror. Of these he extirpated some, whilst he permitted others to retain their possessions on payment of tribute. We hear no more of the Kingdom of Reged; but Strathclyde continued to enjoy a domestic, though tributary government. Elmete retained its own kings, and it is probable that a British population still inhabited the west coast from the Solway to the Mersey. The latter river formed the proper boundary of Northumberland, but Ethelfrith extended his conquests into Chester and North Wales, and appears to have held a paramount superiority over Mercia, which, as we learn from Nennius, was tributary to Northumberland, until its independence was asserted by the arms of Penda.

Edwine enlarged the Anglo-Saxon settlement by the expulsion of Certic, King of Elmete, and the occupation of his territory.*

The increasing population of the Saxons continued to press the Britons within more narrow limits. Strathclyde still remained in the hands of its indigenous possessors in the age of Bede, but Galloway (not yet so called, but indicated by its capital, Candida Casa, or Whitherne) was incorporated with Bernicia, and possessed by the Saxons.†

To the south of the Solway the British possessions extended to the shores of Morcambe Bay, although subject to the Saxon rule. In this district Carlisle, and a circuit of country within fifteen miles, as well as Cartmel, "with all its Britons," had been bestowed by King Ecgfrid on Saint Cuthbert, and attached to the See of Lindisfarne.‡ On Ecgfrid's death the Strathclyde Britons shook off the Saxon supremacy, and were never afterwards subject to Northumberland,|| to which, however, Carlisle continued annexed for nearly two centuries later, being still under the spiritual charge of the See of Lindisfarne, when Eardulph, the last Bishop, was driven from his seat by the invading Danes.§

In the meantime a great revolution had occurred in Galloway, the progress of which we have no means of tracing, but which terminated in the expulsion of the Saxons, and the substitution of a Pictish population. Forty-six years before Bede wrote, the Picts had recovered possession of their own lands, which had been wrested from them by the Northumbrians under Oswy; but these were beyond the limits of Bernicia. Galloway continued under the Anglo-Saxon government as late, at all events, as the year 790, when Baldulph was appointed to the Bishopric. In the year 837 we have distinct evidence that the province was in the hands of the Picts. In that year Alpin, King of the Scots, was slain by the Picts of Galloway, as we learn from an ancient chronicle published by Innes, under the title of "Nomina Regum." His death was avenged by his son Kenneth, and "hence," says our authority, "the government of the Picts was superseded by the government of the Scots."

Henceforward we hear no more of the Picts in their appropriate territory, but they frequently occur as the inhabitants of Galloway. In 875 the Danes ravaged the Picts and Strathclyde Britons. The testimony of the Saxon Chronicle, of Asser, and of all our ancient historians, proves the juxta-position of the two people, although Galloway is not, in this instance, expressly mentioned as the residence of the Picts. Joceline, in his life of Kentigern, uses "Terra Pictorum" as synonymous with Galloway; and Reginald, who describes the wanderings of the Monks of Lindisfarne with the body of their patron Saint, places beyond dispute the locality of the Land of the Picts, by noticing Kirkcudbright as within its limits.

Chalmers, and other Scotch antiquarians, although they admit the conquest of Galloway by a tribe who had obtained the name of Picts, contend that they were not derived from the Pictish stock in Britain, but were natives of the opposite coast of Ireland, and that the term "Pict," as applied to them, was but a translation of "Cruithne," the vernacular epithet of the Irish colonists. The two names may possibly have the same signification; but no instance can be adduced of the actual application of the term Picts to the Cruithne, nor is it probable that the rude annalists of this early period, in describing the acts of the Cruithne, would pause to offer a translation rather than apply the original word by which they were familiarly known, especially when, by so doing, they incurred the risk of rendering their narrative unintelligible. Still less is it likely, that they would apply to the people of another country a designation which had been so long appropriated to one of the nations inhabiting their own island. Some versions of the Irish Annals do, it is true, confound the Picts and the Cruithne; but their error is the reverse of that committed by our modern historians, for they apply the term Cruithne to the Picts, not Picts to the Cruithne. The Ulster Annals, however, the most authentic of any, correctly discriminate between the two people, and always give to each its distinctive appellation. The passage quoted above, from the "Nomina Regum," is conclusive on this point. The murder of Alpin by the Galloway Picts, was the cause of the extinction of the Pictish power beyond the Firths, and we must admit the identity of the party who offered the provocation and who received the punishment.

Ancient writers, it may be said, mention the total extirmination of the Picts, but their assertion is not the less credible, if we qualify it by confining its application to the ancient Pictavia, and accept the evidence, which we possess, that a remnant of the proscribed race found an asylum in Galloway. Chalmers, in support of his theory, quotes from the Ulster Annals two instances of the invasion of Britain by the Cruithne, in the years 682 and 702, but in both instances they were defeated, nor have we the slightest evidence of any subsequent act of aggression. On the contrary, Bede, who lived a generation later, describes the Irish as a harmless nation ("gentem innoxiam"), who, so far from threatening their neighbours, were unequal to the defence of their own territories.

The distracted state of Northumberland in the latter part of the ninth century, over-run by the barbarian Danes, and cut up into petty principalities, afforded ample scope for the independent action of the Picts and Britons within its ancient limits. No central authority existed for the government of those who had hitherto been dependent, still less any ability to coerce those who had revolted.

At this era, we first meet with Cumbria, or Cumberland, as the distinctive name of a British Kingdom. "Cymri" is the appellation by which the British Bards always distinguish their countrymen; and "Cumbri" is used by Ethelward, one of the earliest Saxon historians, as its Latin equivalent. Still the term is always used to mark the race, and not the locality of the people.

Joceline, indeed, a writer of the twelfth century, of very slender authority, talks of Strathclyde as "Regnum Cambrense" and "Regnum Cambrinum," and even applies to it the name of "Cambria;" but "Strathclyde," or "Alclyde," with sundry variations of orthography, are the designations given by all the earlier writers.

The only author who informs us of the origin of the Kingdom of Cumberland is Fordun, and although his testimony is of little weight when opposed by other authority, his statement in the present instance is so consistent with probability, that we may venture to receive it.

He tells us, that "The indigenous inhabitants of certain provinces voluntarily submitted themselves to Gregory (the king, or, according to others, the regent, of Scotland), with their lands and possessions, offering to him an oath of fealty and homage, thinking it preferable to be subject to the Scots, who, although enemies, were Christians, than to infidel Pagans."

These "Indigenæ" were, doubtless, the inhabitants of the district of which Carlisle was the capital, and of Galloway, the only people within the range of Gregory's operations, to whom the term could be applied, except the Strathclydians, who were already his allies.

Gregory was the contemporary of the English Alfred, and died A. D. 887, being succeeded by Donald, the son of Kenneth. On the death of the latter, Constantine became king, as well of the ancient realm of Scotland, as of the provinces acquired by Gregory. Strathclyde still remained independent, but on the death of the king of that state, also called Donald, Donald, the brother of Constantine, was, in the words of the "Chronicon Pictorum," elected king.

This Donald had a son Owen, or Eugenius, who not only succeeded to his father's throne, but had the boundaries of his dominions enlarged by Constantine, whose nephew and presumptive heir he was, by the annexation of the other indigenous states.* Strathclyde was thus merged in Cumbria, the name given to the new kingdom; but much confusion has been created by an ignorance of these circumstances, and an assumption that Strathclyde and Cumbria co-existed as two distinct kingdoms. This mistake originated with Florence of Worcester, who, in narrating the fact that Edward the elder, of England, received the homage of the Kings of all the various nations inhabiting Britain, mentions "Scots, Cumbrians, Strathclydians," and all the Kings of the Western Britons. He knew that there had for ages been Kings of Strathclyde, and finding, shortly afterwards, mention made of a King of Cumberland, he placed both in his list, and has thus misled succeeding historians.

The Saxon Chronicle, from which Florence derived his information, is not responsible for his error. That venerable authority enumerates, amongst others, the King of Strathclyde, but is silent as to the King of Cumbria, a state which as yet had no existence.

An Inquisition† of David, Prince of Cumbria, afterwards King of Scotland, respecting the possessions of the See of Glasgow, has been appealed to by Pinkerton and Chalmers, to show that the "Cumbrian Region," which they would identify with Strathclyde, was distinct from the Kingdom of Cumberland, the former lying to the north of the Solway and extending to it—the latter lying exclusively to the south of it. They succeed, indeed, in proving that David's principality was confined to the north of the Solway, but they overlook the declaration of the instrument itself, that the Prince was not in the possession of the whole of Cumbria.‡

Neither did Strathclyde, at any time, extend to the Solway. Even Joceline, who describes it in its palmy state, and is anxious to magnify as much as possible the importance of his "Regnum Cambrense," does not lay claim to Galloway as a part of it. On the contrary, when he speaks of the labours of Kentigern in the land of the Picts, he expressly tells us that it was beyond the limits of his diocese, which was co-extensive with the Cambrian Kingdom.

A document has recently been brought to light, which places the boundaries of ancient Cumberland beyond all dispute. When Edward the First laid claim to a feudal superiority over the Kingdom of Scotland, he caused diligent search to be made in the libraries of the principal Monasteries throughout England for information in support of his asserted right. Extracts were furnished, amongst others, by the Monastery of Carlisle, from Chronicles in their possession. These refer particularly to Cumberland, and are accompanied by a statement of the boundaries of that kingdom, to the following effect:—"That district was called Cumbria, which is now included in the Bishoprics of Carlisle, Glasgow, and Whitherne, together with the country lying between the Bishopric of Carlisle and the river Duddon." No higher authority could be quoted than the archives of an establishment which was situated in that very portion of the district to which the doubt attached. The extracts are still in existence, as returned by the several Religious Houses, and have been printed by the late Record Commission, from whose publication the preceding quotation is made. Although Fordun is, as has been stated, the only author who explains the early connection of Cumberland with Scotland, we have abundant evidence of the intimate alliance of the rulers of the two states, who, in concert with the Danes and Welch, attempted to wrest the sovereign power out of the vigorous hands of Athelstane. Owen accompanied Constantine to the disastrous battle of Brunenburgh, A. D. 938, which he did not long survive. When Edmund invaded Cumberland seven years afterwards, Dunmail was King. Matthew of Westminster informs us that King Edmund, aided by Leoline, King of South Wales, despoiled Cumberland of all her wealth, and cruelly deprived the two sons of Dunmail of sight. We may infer that Dunmail himself escaped, as no mention is made of his death or capture. If Dunwallon, who died at Rome in 975, is correctly described by Caradoc as Prince of Strathclyde, he is necessarily identified with this fugitive King, who must have survived his deposition thirty years; and although he is styled, in the Annals of Ulster, King of Wales, his patronymic designation of the Son of Owen seems to connect him with Cumberland, as the immediate descendant of her first sovereign.

Edmund having completely wasted Cumberland, placed it at the disposal of Malcolm, King of Scotland, an acknowledgement, it would seem, of the right of the Scottish Crown to that territory, and a presumptive proof of the accuracy of Fordun's narrative.

From this period Cumberland continued in the possession of the royal line of Scotland, sometimes retained by the king himself, at others by a member of his family; usually, if we may credit the national historians, by the proximate heir. The only circumstance, which is recorded of it for many years, is its total devastation by Ethelred, King of England, A. D. 1000, at which time it is represented by Henry of Huntingdon, as the principal rendezvous of the Danish marauders.

In the meantime, Northumberland had ceased to exist as a Kingdom. Eyríc, of Danish extraction, was its last King. On his death, A. D. 950, the government of the province was committed by Edred, the Anglo-Saxon monarch, to Osulph, with the title of Earl. In 1018, Eadulph Cudel, who then held the Earldom, surrendered Lothian to the King of Scotland*, and the Tweed became henceforward the Northern boundary of Northumberland. Siward was appointed to the Earldom A. D. 1052, at which time Macbeth occupied the Scottish throne, and Malcolm, the son of Duncan, Macbeth's predecessor, was King of Cumberland. Siward, by command of Edward the Confessor, invaded Scotland with a powerful army, defeated Macbeth, and placed Malcolm, the son of the King of Cumberland, on the throne.

This Malcolm held, at the time of the Norman Conquest, the ancient Kingdom of Scotland, and, in addition, Cumberland and

* See authorities (some conflicting) in Chalmers's "Caledonia."

Lothian. He took part with Edwine and Morcar, Earls of Mercia and Northumberland, in their revolt against William the Conqueror, and shared, in some degree, in their disasters. In the year 1070, as we learn from Simeon of Durham, Cumberland was over-run by Gospatric, Earl of Northumberland, in revenge for the devastation of Teesdale by the Scots. This appears to have been the true æra of the severance of the Earldom of Carlisle from the Kingdom of Cumberland; and, although Northumberland was shortly afterwards taken from Gospatric, we find his son, Dolphin, in possession of Carlisle in the reign of William Rufus. Although deprived of Carlisle, Malcolm continued in possession of Lothian, for which, according to Ordericus Vitalis, he did homage to William. The present boundaries between England and Scotland were thus established. On the deposition of Gospatric, William took the southern part of his Earldom into his own hands; but Northumberland, north of the Tees, continued to be held as an Earldom till its forfeiture in the reign of William Rufus, by the rebellion of Robert de Mowbray.

In the year 1092, "King William, with a great army, went Northwards to Carlisle, and rebuilt the city, and erected a castle. He expelled Dolphin, who was at that time Governor, and placed his men in the castle. On his return south, he sent thither a great multitude of English, with their wives and cattle, to reside there and cultivate the land." Such is the narrative of the Saxon Chronicle, and a Charter of William Rufus to the Monastery of Armathwaite is preserved in the Monasticon, which shows that in some part of this reign Cumberland was in the possession of the Crown. In the succeeding reign it belonged to Ranulph de Meschines, as appears from several monastic charters. He is also referred to in the ancient Inquisitions in the Testa de Neville, as "formerly Lord of Cumberland."

Matthew of Westminster, indeed, fixes the period of his occupation of the Earldom in the reign of William the Conqueror, but he is contradicted by the charters before alluded to, which indisputably belong to the time of Henry the First. His entire statement, indeed, is full of palpable blunders, for he goes on to say,

"King William returning from Scotland through Cumberland (A. D. 1072), beholding so royal a town, took it from Earl Ranulph, and gave him instead of it the Earldom of Chester. The King also ordered Carlisle to be fortified with the strongest towers and ramparts." Now, in the first place, Ranulph did not obtain Chester till forty-six years afterwards, and secondly, we learn from Simeon of Durham, that Carlisle was not restored till the reign of William Rufus, having lain desolate two hundred years, since its destruction by the Danes. Ranulph de Meschines, or, as he is called by Ordericus Vitalis, de Brichsard, was Viscount or Sheriff of Bayeux. A former Viscount of Bayeux, of the same Christian name,* and probably the same family, is mentioned by William of Poitiers, as amongst the Norman Nobles who conspired against William the Conqueror on his accession to the Duchy.

This early disaffection probably accounts for the absence of any of this name from the lists which have been handed down of the Norman Warriors, who assisted in the Conquest of England.

Matthew of Westminster, indeed, to whose statement reference has been already made, says that Ranulph himself, afterwards Earl of Chester, was an efficient auxiliary on the occasion. Now the Earl of Chester's death did not take place till the year 1129; and, if we are to credit this account, he must either have been a very precocious warrior at the Battle of Hastings, or his life must have been prolonged far beyond the ordinary term of human existence.

Ranulph married Lucia the widow of Roger de Romara, who is represented by the author of the history which passes under the name of Ingulphus, to have been the daughter of Algar, Earl of Mercia, and to have been previously the wife of Yvo Tailboise. From authentic evidence it is clear that he is in error in both particulars. Yvo did not marry the daughter of Algar, nor was it his widow, but his daughter, who was the wife of Roger de Romara.

From Ordericus Vitalis we learn that Algar had but one daughter, Aldit, who was successively the wife of Griffen, Prince of Wales, and of Earl Harold. By the former she had a son, who was of mature age at an early period of William the Conqueror's reign, when he raised an army in aid of his uncles, Edwine and Morcar. Besides the difference of name, it is impossible to identify Aldit with the Countess of Chester, who must, in that case, have been at least one hundred years old on the death of her last husband, A. D. 1129, and yet she paid a heavy fine for liberty to remain in a state of widowhood for five years.*

The historian further insists that Lucia succeeded to the vast estates of her brothers, Edwine and Morcar. Ordericus, on the other hand, informs us that their possessions were distributed amongst a host of Norman adventurers, and in this his statement is confirmed by Domesday-Book.

The Manor of Spalding and its dependencies, which had formed a part of Algar's property, were indeed enjoyed by Yvo in right of his wife; but this was derived by her descent, not from Algar, but from Torald, to whom he granted the Manor, and who is recognised by Yvo as his wife's ancestor in his charter to the monastery of that place.

If the Croyland historian had been really Ingulphus, the contemporary and near neighbour of Yvo Tailboise, it would be difficult to account for the error into which he has fallen, in confounding the daughter of that nobleman with his widow. The compilation, however, is evidently the work of a much later writer,† and the mistake, which is common also to the author of the Peterborough Annals, admits of ready explanation. Not only were the Christian names the same, but Lucia, Countess of Chester, in a charter to the Monastery of Spalding,* places the names of Yvo and of her two husbands in such juxta-position as might naturally lead to the inference that she had been, in succession, the wife of them all, although the words do not necessarily bear this interpretation. Lucia must have been the wife of Roger de Romara many years before the death of Yvo Tailboise, which, according to Peter Blessensis, took place A. D. 1117, for in 1119 her son, William de Romara, is mentioned by Ordericus as having distinguished himself in the civil conflicts in Normandy. That Lucia was the daughter of Yvo Tailboise is apparent from the Pipe-Roll of the thirty-first of Henry the First, in which she is charged with a fine of £200. for livery of her father's lands in Lincolnshire. These lands, which were afterwards the inheritance of William de Romara, were all in the possession of Yvo at the period of the Doomsday survey, but were previously, as that Record testifies, in the hands of a numerous proprietary. Spalding was, doubtless, enjoyed by its first Norman possessor in right of his wife, but the other Manors had been added by the liberality of his Sovereign, and an hereditary claim to the whole could only be derived from himself.

We have no evidence that Ranulph was in possession of Cumberland previous to the reign of Henry the First. The pretended confirmation charter of William the Conqueror to the Monastery of Wetheral is a palpable forgery, abounding in anachronisms and inconsistencies. The real Foundation Charter of that establishment expresses that it was endowed by Ranulph de Meschines for the soul of King Henry, in addition to the members of his own family. To that Sovereign, therefore, we may conclude he was indebted for the territory, a portion of which he thus devoted to pious uses. He was also the founder of the Abbey of Calder.

On the death of his nephew Richard, Earl of Chester, who perished by shipwreck, in company with William, the son of King Henry, A. D. 1120, Ranulph succeeded to that honour in right of his mother, Matilda, daughter of Richard and sister of Hugh, successively Earls of Chester. In addition to the charge of a very heavy fine*, he surrendered the Earldom of Carlisle to the Crown†, in whose hands it remained during the remainder of the reign of Henry the First, on whose death it again passed into the hands of the King of Scotland, Stephen being glad to purchase the acquiescence of David, in his usurpation, by the cession of this province to himself, and of Northumberland to his son Henry.

Henry the Second finally attached both Earldoms to the English Crown, although the claims of Scotland were not abandoned till the reign of his grandson, Henry the Third.

King John actually received fifteen thousand marks as the price of the two provinces, but failed in the performance of his engagement to surrender them to the King of Scotland. After years of fruitless negociation and unsuccessful warfare, the dispute was terminated by the mediation of Cardinal Otho, the Papal Legate, who awarded that, in full satisfaction of the claims of the King of Scotland, as well to the disputed territory as to the repayment of the fifteen thousand marks, he should receive lands in the counties of Northumberland, Cumberland, and Westmorland, of the annual value of two hundred pounds, if the Crown possessed demesnes of that amount without the precincts of towns in which castles were situated. In default of which the deficiency should be made up in the adjoining counties.

In pursuance of this arrangement, Nicholas de Farnham, Bishop of Durham, was commissioned, A. D. 1242, to assign lands of the above value to the Scottish King, who, in consequence, became possessed of the manors of Penrith, Sowerby, Longwathby, Salkeld, Carlatton, and Scotby, all in Cumberland.‡

When Cumberland first came into the possession of the Royal Family of Scotland, the river Duddon was, as has been shown, its southern boundary. At a subsequent period, the peninsula, which lies between the rivers Esk and Duddon, had been taken from it, and is described, in Doomsday-Book, as part of Amounderness, which is placed in the survey after the West Riding of Yorkshire. The limits of this contracted frontier are precisely indicated by fortifications, of which vestiges can even now be distinctly traced, and of which the ancient magnitude is attested by popular tradition, although their object and their founders are forgotten.

Of these, the most extensive and important is situated on the high ground which commands the passage of the Esk, near the outfall of that river into the sea, at Ravenglass, as well as the inland route by Devoek water. These ruins are still dignified by the neighbouring peasantry by the appellation of the city of Barnscar, and consist of large piles of unwrought stones. Another fortress, now called Hardknott Castle, is situated on an eminence, commanding a mountain pass, over which there still exists a horse track, rarely traversed, from Ambleside to the sea-coast.

Both fortresses were probably erected by the Northumbrian rulers to restrain the incursions of their Celtic neighbours. The whole country between the Duddon and the Esk is comprised in the Lordship of Millom, and forms a part of the modern county of Cumberland.

Camden describes the Inhabitants of Cumberland as "true and genuine Britons," and it is probable that they mingled little with their Saxon Conquerors. The Danes, however, who first invaded Cumberland, and destroyed Carlisle in the ninth century, had formed a permanent settlement there at the close of the tenth. Saxon colonists were introduced by William Rufus, and the possession of the Earldom by a Norman Nobleman and his followers, in the reign of Henry the First, completed the mixture of the several races which inhabited England. Traces also of the Scottish descent of one of the landed proprietors* are to be found in the patronymic prefix "Mac," or "Map," which occurs in the Pipe-Rolls in this volume. Indeed, from the long period of the Scottish supremacy in Cumberland, there was probably a considerable influx of population from the north.

SECTION II.

HEN. II. RICHARD I. JOHN.

Description of Pipe Rolls—Sources of Revenue in Cumberland—Farm of the County—The Forest—Mines—Cornage Rent—Escheats—Gifts, Aids, Scutages and Tallages—Relief, Wardship, and Marriage—Bishopric—Fines and Amercements—Casual Revenue.

THE present volume contains the Pipe-Rolls of Cumberland, Westmorland, and, during vacancies in the bishopric, of Durham, for the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John. It has not been considered necessary to reprint the accounts of these counties for the thirty-first of Henry I., as the entire Roll of that year, the only one extant of an earlier date than the reign of Henry II., has been already published by the Commissioners of the Public Records. Not only are the Pipe-Rolls the earliest consecutive series of Records, but the information which they contain is the most complete in the earliest portion of the series, when almost every branch of the revenue admitted of a territorial arrangement under the several counties.

The sources of income will be best illustrated by a separate consideration of the accounts of Cumberland and Westmorland. The Pipe-Rolls of Durham are too limited in number to furnish any thing like a connected view of that county, but they will be found a valuable addition to the materials, already abundant, which have been applied to its illustration.

The revenues of Cumberland may be classed under the following heads:—

- I. The Farm of the County, the City of Carlisle, and the Royal Manors.
- II. The Profits of the Forest.
- III. The Mines.

- IV. The Noutgeld, or Cornage Rent.
- V. The Escheats.
- VI. Gifts, Aids, Scutages, and Tallages.
- VII. Reliefs, Wardship, and Marriages.
- VIII. The Bishopric, during a vacancy.
- IX. Fines and Amercements.
- X. Casual Revenue.

The classification of Maddox, in his History of the Exchequer, has generally been adhered to, but it was impossible to distinguish, as he would do, between the Farm of the County, and the Royal Demesnes, both being held by the Sheriff under one rent. Two branches of the profits of the demesnes have, however, been classed separately, those arising from the Forest, and the Mines. An additional branch of much interest is the Noutgeld.

I. The Farm of the County of Cumberland (Firma de Chaerliolio) and the Royal Manors amounted, in the 31st of Henry I., to £55. 2s. 4d., less 13s. 6d., the value of land granted to Richard the knight. Of the remaining amount, £5. 13s. 4d. was absorbed by fixed payments. An additional rent of 30s. was paid by William the Son of Baldwin for "the King's Garden in Carlisle."

The Pipe-Rolls of Henry II. do not contain any earlier accounts for Cumberland than the 4th year of his reign, as that county, together with Northumberland, was only then recovered from the King of Scotland. In that year the Sheriff only accounted for a rent of £52., chargeable, as in all succeeding years, with a fixed alms of one mark to the Knights' Templars. The following year the Farm of the County, the City, and the Royal Manors, Penrith, Langwathby, Salkeld, Scothy, Lazonby, and Edenhall, was fixed at £114. 0s. 4d.

In the 5th of Henry II. the manors of Langwathby and Edenhall were granted to Henry Fitz-Suine, and an abatement of rent to the amount of £10. per annum was made to the Sheriff, until the 18th Henry II., when the manors reverted to the Crown.

In the 12th of the same reign, Lazonby was granted to Simon de Morville, but reverted, on his death, the following year. In the former year the abatement to the Sheriff was 18*s.* 4*d.*, in the latter 13*s.* 9*d.*

Langwathby was not again granted, but Edenhall and Lazonby were not long in the hands of the Crown, as neither manor contributed to the Tallage of the Royal Demesnes in the 33rd of Henry II. No allowance was made to the Sheriff on the alienation of these manors. William de Brus was rated, in respect of Edenhall, at 10*s.* for half a Knight's-fee in the Scutages of the 6th and 7th of Richard I.

In the 3rd of John, the citizens of Carlisle entered into an arrangement to farm the City themselves. For this privilege they had to pay a fine of 60 marks, and an increased annual rent of £3., over and above that previously paid by the Sheriff. A similar bargain was made by the Royal Manors. Penrith had to pay a fine of 5 marks, and an annual increment (crementum) of £5. Langwathby, Salkeld, and Scotby had to pay a fine of one chascur each, and the two former were charged with an increment, Langwathby £3., Scotby £2.

These agreements were, however, violated by the king, on receiving a more alluring offer. The sheriff, William de Stuteville, undertook to farm the City on the terms agreed to by the citizens, both as to fine and rent, and further, to pay an increment of £20. beyond the accustomed rent of the four manors. Nevertheless, the new arrangement did not prove advantageous, for William de Stuteville died within three years, leaving the fine unpaid, and the rent in arrear. His successors were only charged with the ancient farm, which remained unaltered throughout the reign.

II. The custody of the Forest of Cumberland was granted to Robert de Trivers by Ranulph de Meschines,* and was held by Simon de Morville, in the 12th of Henry II., at a rent of 5 marks. On his death, it was farmed by successive Sheriffs at 10 marks. In the 3rd and 4th of Richard I., the Sheriff paid 7 marks, and Gilbert Pipard 3 marks, the latter being for the "Forest of Allerdale." The next year, the Sheriff is charged with the entire rent. In the 6th of the same reign, Hugh de Morville paid a fine of £100. for the Forestership (Census Forestæ) at a reserved rent of 10 marks.

* Testa de Neville, 379, b.

In the 4th of John, on the death of Hugh de Morville, William Briewer got possession of the Census of the Forest, together with the Wardship of Joan de Morville, the younger daughter of Hugh, but was obliged to relinquish it to Richard de Luci, the husband of the elder daughter.

In the 12th of John, Richard de Luci was fined £100. for mismanagement of the Forest (de foresta male custoditâ).

Pleas of the Forest are not noticed in these records previous to the 13th of Henry II., after which they occur from time to time, the profits going to the Crown and not to the Forester. They include payments for timber cut, and hay won in the forest; forest-land cultivated; mills erected, and other encroachments; cattle and pigs impounded; goods of felons seized in the forest; amercements for offences committed therein; and a variety of miscellaneous items.

Considerable sums were received for Pannage, or the feeding of swine, as in the following years:—

William, the Son of Erembald, continued to hold the Mines at the same nominal rent for the next nine years, the actual payments, however, only amounted to £893. 6s. 8d. on an aggregate rental of £3000. The payments and arrears are here shown in each year:—

During the 19th and 20th years the county was devastated by civil war, which would account for the absence of any receipt for the 20th and 21st years, but the deficiencies in the annual returns, both before and after, demonstrate that the Mines had been let far beyond their intrinsic value.

In the 26th year, William, the Son of Erembald, held the Mines the first quarter, and for the remainder of that and the two following years, they were worked by several adventurers. The rent was fixed at £200. per annum, but £313. 7s. 8d. was ultimately realized for the three years.

In the 29th of Henry II., William, Son of Erembald, was again the lessee, with Roger de Stuteville, Robert de Vaux, and Reiner Dapifer, for his sureties, at a rent of 220 marks. He paid £94. 13s. 4d., and Roger de Stuteville had to pay the remaining £52.

The two following years the Mines were in the hands of the Crown, producing, the first year, £61. 11s., and the year following, £73. 9s.

During the three last years of Henry II. and the two first of Richard I., the Mines were let to Allan the Moneyer and Richard, the brother of Humphrey, who paid the rent of £100. per annum.

During the three next years the Earldom of Northumberland was in the hands of Hugh Pudsey, Bishop of Durham, by grant from the Crown, and although the Mines had always been described as the Mines of Carlisle or Cumberland, it appears that the most valuable portion of them was in Northumberland.* Allan the Moneyer now became the lessee of the Cumberland section of them at a rent of only £10. In the 6th of Richard, Allan was again the lessee of the entire Mines at a rent of £50., and so he continued to the end of the reign. In the 1st of John, Hugh Bardolph accounted for £25.; and for the succeeding four years they were farmed by William de Stuteville, who, at the close of his shrievalty, left an arrear of £25. 8s. 8d. During the shrievalty of Robert de Curtenai, of one year and a half, no payment was made. Next year, the 7th of John, Roger de Lasci made a payment of £4. 9s. 5d., and no further payment was made for the next six years, although the Sheriff was annually charged with a rent of £50. In the 14th of John, a rent of 10 marks is fixed, which is paid by the Sheriff in that and the two succeeding years.

* The original Mine was no doubt in Cumberland. In the 12th of Henry II., when the rent was raised from 400 to 500 marks, the lessee is charged with the latter sum as the farm of the two Mines. It is probable that the Northumberland Mine had been recently opened, and having turned out very productive, caused the rapid augmentation of rent from £100. to £333. 6s. 8d. within three years. In the 9th year, in addition to £100. for the Cumberland Mine, £20. is paid for the Mines in Yorkshire.

IV. The Noutgeld or Cornage Rent formed an important item of revenue in Cumberland. Absurd notions have been entertained of the nature of the tenure by Cornage, arising from an erroneous derivation of its name, of which the Latin word "Cornu" has been assumed to be the root. Judge Littleton, without inquiry, gave currency to the popular error. "It is said," he observes, "that in the marches of Scotland, some hold of the King by Cornage, that is to say, to wind a horn, to give notice to the men of the country, when they hear that the Scots or other enemies are come or will enter England." Not the slightest authority can be produced in support of this assertion, nor can anything be more ridiculous than the supposition that all the lands in Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Northumberland (where the same tenure prevailed) were enjoyed for no other consideration than the obligation of each man giving to his neighbour information essential to his own safety.

Cornagium would seem to be a natural contraction of Coronagium, and its signification simply a Crown-rent. The term Noutgeld was no doubt derived from the payment being originally in cattle, the staple commodity of Cumberland. The colonists sent by William Rufus were furnished with a stock of cattle, a proof that the country was then looked upon as chiefly adapted for grazing. The payment of the rent in stock may have been arranged at that time, for there are no traces of it with reference to the Cornage of Northumberland.

Even in Cumberland, the only evidence of the rent having been paid in cattle is confined to the name; but that seems conclusive. Before the date of the earliest Pipe-Roll, the payment was made in money. In the 31st of Henry I. the Sheriff accounts for £85. 8s. 8d. as the "Geldum animalium" of that year, and a like sum for the year preceding.

An account of the Cornage of Northumberland was returned to the Exchequer, in the 49th of Henry III., by Robert de Insula, the Sheriff, by which it appears that the entire charge (exclusive of the lands of the King of Scotland and the Prior of Tynemouth, which were exempted) was only £18. 4s. 6d. The great inequality in favour of the larger county, points to the conclusion that the money-rent in Northumberland was fixed at a much earlier period than in Cumberland, the value of specie having greatly diminished before the payment in cattle in the latter was commuted.

It is clear that the Cornage tenants were originally exempt from foreign military service, their presence being required at home for the defence of their own borders.* They are consequently excluded from the Scutages, in lieu of military service abroad, in the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I. King John attempted to deprive them of this immunity, and they are charged to some of the Scutages of that reign. They were subject to all the other incidents of feudal tenure, at all events, in the reign of Henry II., if not originally. The crown derived from them the usual profits of marriage, wardship, and relief, and they contributed, with the rest of the kingdom, to the gifts, aids, and other contributions.

In Henry the Second's reign the Noutgeld is only computed at £80. 10s. 8d., being £4. 18s. less than in the reign of his grandfather. This arises probably from lands, which at the former period were held by this tenure, having come into the possession of the crown, and the Cornage being merged in the rent paid by the Sheriff for the royal demesnes.

In the first year in which he had possession of Cumberland, Henry II. granted to Hubert de Vaux the barony of Gilsland, and exempted him from his proportion of the Noutgeld, amounting to £18. 13s. 3d. For this payment, and tenure by Cornage, he substituted the ordinary feudal service, the barony being rated as two Knights'-fees. The Canons of Carlisle also enjoyed exemption from Cornage, to the amount of £1. 17s. 4d., in respect of their manors of Linstock and Carleton.

In the reign of Richard I., the Noutgeld of £1. 7s. 11d.,

* "All the tenants by Cornage are bound, at the King's command, to go with the Army of Scotland, serving in the vanguard in going, and in the rearguard in returning."—Testa de Nevill, 380.

chargeable on the manors of Outerby, Fermanby, and Old Salkeld, was remitted to Adam the Cook, who held them by the yearly payment of one pound of pepper.

The revenue from this source was thus reduced to £58. 12s. 2d., of which £48. 2s. 9d. was made up of various payments from individual landowners,* and the remainder was chargeable on the Escheats in the hands of the Crown.

The great barony of Coupland paid no Cornage,† the proprietor being merely bound to attend his sovereign in expeditions against Wales and Scotland.

V. The Escheats of Cumberland were farmed by the Sheriff in the same way as the royal demesnes, except during the latter part of the reign of Richard I., when Hugh Bardolf was Escheator of this and the other Northern Counties. His first account for the Escheats is for the latter half of the 6th of Richard, and his last for the first half of the 1st of John.

In the 10th of Henry II. the Sheriff first accounts for the manors of Old Salkeld and Highbrightby (Outerby), two carucates of land and a tannery. For three years the rent of the whole was £4. 13s. 4d. per annum. Subsequently the rent of Old Salkeld was £4., and of Outerby £1. The tannery produced in different years £1. 5s., £1. 10s., and £1.

Castle Sowerby is first accounted for in the 31st of Henry II., when Hugh de Morwick paid 40 shillings for half a year, but it appears that it had been held by Robert de Vaux, the preceding Sheriff, for 10 years without acknowledgment. For this breach of trust, and in discharge of arrears, he was fined £50. 3s. 4d.

Gamelsby and Glassenby came into the possession of the Crown in the 24th of Henry II., but they produced that year only 17 shillings. The average produce of the next seven years was nearly £6.

Previous to the 31st of Henry II. the manors of Dalston, Fermanby, Ousby, Stanwix, and Carlatton, were escheated. Carlatton was the property of Gospatric, who was outlawed and his property confiscated the previous year; but we have no certain information as to the proprietors of the other estates. Britius is mentioned as an outlaw at the same time as Gospatric, and Ædred the year following.

The whole of the Escheats, including the recent acquisitions, were let together at the rent of £42. 13s. 4d., at which they continued till the 2d of John, when an increment of £58. was imposed.

In the mean time, Outerby and Fermanby were granted to Adam the Cook in the 4th, and Old Salkeld to the same party in the 6th, of Richard I. In the 10th, Richard the son of Richard Fitz-Troit had seisin of Gamelsby and Glassenby.

An abatement of the ancient rent was made of £2. for the two first, £2. 16s. for Old Salkeld, and £15. 9s. 8d. for Gamelsby and Glassenby, so that the rent actually payable, with the increment in the 2d of John, was £80. 7s. 8d. In the 4th of John, the third year of the increased rent, there was an arrear of £37. 13s. 1d., which was never discharged, nor was any portion of the increment paid in succeeding years.

In the 3d of John, Gamelsby and Glassenby were again in the hands of the Crown, and so continued till the 12th, but, the stock having been sold off the land previous to its surrender to Robert Fitz-Troit, an allowance of £10. 19s. was made to the Sheriff on that account during each of the nine years, thus reducing the rent of the Escheats to £26. 18s. 4d., exclusive of the increment.

After the final relinquishment of Gamelsby and Glassenby, the allowance made to the Sheriff was £14. 11s. 3d., and the rent actually paid was £23. 6s. 1d. This was exclusive of £1. for the tannery, which was never included in the general farm of the Escheats, and was not alienated with the manors of Old Salkeld and Outerby, with which it was originally connected.

The Escheats which still remained in the Crown, and were included in the above rental in the 16th of John, were Sowerby, Dalston, Ousby, Stanwix, and Carlatton.

There were, besides, some small properties, the accounts of which were kept distinct from the larger Escheats. Certain tenements held by servile tenure were forfeited about the 28th of Henry II., and produced an annual rental of 6s. 8d. in Skelton, 5s. in Racton, and 2s. in Waverton.

The estate of Huthwait, the property of Simon Tilliol, was escheated in the 3d of John, and produced £1. annually.

In this reign, it was a common practice, when encroachments were discovered, or enclosures sanctioned, or licenses granted for the tillage of common pasture, or the erection of mills, in addition to the imposition of a fine, to reserve an annual rent. Instances of this occur in the 3d, the 10th, the 11th, and following years. The petty rents from this source in the 16th of John amounted to £1. 2s., exclusive of fines for further licenses, of which there were several. The total proceeds of the Escheats and Impresture in the above year is recapitulated below :—

VI. The earliest general contributions to the necessities of the state which occur in these Rolls are termed "Dona." Whatever may have been their original character, they were not in Henry the Second's time, as their name would imply, voluntary offerings, but impositions assessed by the King's Justices, and levied by the Sheriffs in the several counties.

A Donum was paid in Cumberland in the 4th of Henry II., a second the year following, and two years later the Knights of the County paid a fine in lieu, as it would appear, of being assessed a third time.

* The King frequently obtained from the Pope a temporary grant of the Papal tenths for state purposes. The first upon record is in 1253; but a second, in 1291, speaks of the "plures" by which it was preceded. Blackstone says the first grant was in 1291, but he is much mistaken.

the sovereign. In the 15th of Henry II. is an account of an aid levied in Cumberland for the marriage of the King's daughter :—

The four Manors of the King's Demesne, 20 marks.

The Burgesses of Carlisle, 50 marks.

The Debt of the County, £33. 6s. 9d.

Scutage or Escuage is used in two senses. First, it signifies any assessment or contribution made in proportion to the number of scuta, or Knights' fees, held by the parties, to a gift, aid, or other contribution. In this view, the contribution of Robert de Vaux to the above aid was a Scutage. It was understood, secondly, in a restricted sense, as a composition of so much per scutum in lieu of the personal attendance in arms of the tenants by Knights'-service. In the 18th of Henry II. is an instance of a Scutage of this limited nature :—

Scutage of Knights who neither served in Ireland nor remitted money.

Robert de Vaux accounts for 40 shillings.

In the 6th of Richard I. an aid was levied for the redemption of the King's person of 20 shillings per Knight's fee, to which Robert de Vaux contributed 40 shillings, and William de Brus 10 shillings. The other proprietors were assessed by Hydage, or a rate per hyde of land.

In the following year was "The Scutage of the army of Normandy" of 20 shillings per Knight's fee.

In the 8th of Richard the Knights and free-tenants of Cumberland render an account of 20 marks for respite of another aid until the King's return.

In the 1st of John was a Scutage of two marks per Knight's fee.

In the 3d of John a great innovation was made, by compelling the tenants, by Cornage, to contribute to a Scutage, "ne transfretent." Richard de Luci is charged £10. for his two baronies, four other Barons are charged £5. each, and three smaller proprietors 20 shillings each. The Military-tenants paid two marks per Knight's fee.

During the whole reign of John, Scutages were frequent. In the Scutage in his 5th year, Richard de Luci and Robert de Stuteville appear as the possessors of one Knight's fee each, but instead of being rated as others were at six marks per Knight's fee, the former is charged £20., the latter £5.

Not only did the Cornage tenants contribute to this Scutage, but John de Reigni, for a tenement held by sergeanty, is rated at 2 marks.

Tallage is used in these records to denote the extraordinary payments assessed in the property of the Crown, whether of ancient demesne or escheated.

In the 33rd of Henry II., and again in the 2nd of Richard I., sixteen manors, besides the city of Carlisle, were included in Tallages.

In the 1st of John was a Tallage of the Manors which produced £28. 1s. 8d., and in the 4th, of Carlisle £20.

There was a Tallage also in the 16th of John.

VII. These Rolls furnish abundant evidence of the payment of Relief by the heirs of parties deceased for their inheritance, whether the tenure was by Cornage or Knight's-service. Two instances occur in the earliest Roll in this volume. Peter de Tilliol is charged 50 shillings for the lands of his grandfather, and Simon de Morville 50 marks for the lands of his wife's father Ralph Engaigne.

No case occurs of any profits accruing to the Crown within the County of Cumberland from wardship and marriage in either of the reigns of Henry the Second or Richard, but several instances occur in the reign of John. It is sufficient to recite one very remarkable one, to which allusion has been already made. In the 4th of John, William Briewer accounts for 500 marks for having the daughter of Hugh de Morville with her whole inheritance, and for her marriage to his son Richard, or his nephew Richard Gernun.

In this case it appeared that Hugh de Morville had left two daughters, the elder of whom was married in his life-time to Richard de Luci of Egremont, who substantiated his claim to a share of the inheritance.

This William Briwer was a wholesale trafficker in bargains of this description, as may be seen by a reference to Dogdale's Baronage.

In the 2d of John, Hugh de Morville had paid a fine of two destriers for permission to arrange the marriage between his daughter and Richard de Egremont; and in the same year Richard de Luci paid a fine, amongst other things for liberty, to marry as he thought fit.

Many illustrations of the payment of relief and the profits of wardship and marriage will occur in tracing the pedigrees of families, and the descent of estates. Indeed the records of these feudal exactions form the groundwork of every investigation of this nature.

VIII. The Bishopric of Carlisle was founded by Henry I. Athelwald, the first bishop, was consecrated in 1133. Bernard was appointed in 1156, and Athelwald is assumed to have held the see up to that period. There are, however, evidences in these Rolls of the connection of a Scottish Bishop with Cumberland, and it may be doubted whether during the tenure of a Scottish Sovereign this county was not included in the adjoining diocese of that country. This is rendered the more probable from the circumstance of the date of Bernard's appointment exactly coinciding with that of the restitution of Cumberland to the English Crown. In the 5th and 6th years of Henry II. an allowance is made out of the Noutgeld to the Bishop of Candida Cass. It is doubtful whether this Bishopric of Whithorne had been for a time revived during the period of Cumberland being subject to the Scots, or whether the title is applied to the Bishop of Glasgow, whose Episcopal superintendence undoubtedly extended to Galloway, when that district had not Bishops of its own. An allowance out of the Noutgeld; in the accounts furnished by Robert de Vaux, in the 23rd of Henry II., is made to Deodatus, the Bishop.*

The See of Carlisle is said to have been vacant 30 years after the death of Bernard, but the assertion is not born out by the Pipe Rolls, in which an account of its revenues is only rendered for two years, the 33rd and 34th of Henry II. The total income for the two years was only £50. 19s. 6d., of which no more than fifty shillings found its way to the Royal Treasury. A sum of 12s. 6d. could not be collected in consequence of the poverty of the debtors. Fourteen shillings were expended in oil for the sacrament at Easter, and the residue was employed in repairs to the Cathedral and the Dormitory of the Canons. The Bishopric was not endowed with any landed property, but had the impropriation of three benefices,† and an annual payment of one mark from the School of Carlisle. The remainder of the Bishop's income was derived entirely from Ecclesiastical dues.

IX.—The Revenue derived from fines and amercements was, in the early reigns, very considerable. They were imposed either in the King's Court, by the Justices Itinerant, or in the Forest Courts. Iters were held as early as the reign of Henry I., in the 31st of which Walter Espee and Eustace Fitz-John occur as Justices in Cumberland and other Northern Counties. Pleas relating to Cumberland occur in the earliest rolls in the present volume, but there is no distinct notice of an Iter till the 9th of Henry II., when Reginald de Luci is mentioned as Justice Itinerant.

In the 14th year another Iter was held by the same Justice, and from this time they occur sometimes in successive or alternate years, and seldom at a greater interval than three years. In the 16th year two distinct Commissions were held, besides the Forest Pleas, and then there was an interval of seven years, occasioned,

* The Scotch Bishops frequently acted as suffragans in the English diocese in times of peace between the two kingdoms. In early times the Bishop of Durham seems to have always had a Scotch or Irish Bishop at his elbow to do his work.

no doubt, by the disturbed state of the County. Distinct Pleas were in two or three instances held for the City of Carlisle and for Coupland. Pleas of the Forest were held by a different Officer, and not by the Justices Itinerant. They were first held in Cumberland in the 13th of Henry II. Fines were levied as a consideration for favours, a condition of obtaining justice, and an attonement for offences. Under the last head Amercements may be included, which Maddox confesses his inability in every instance to distinguish from Fines. The general distinction seems to be, that a Fine was a composition agreed upon, an Amercement a pecuniary penalty inflicted.

Without attempting anything like a complete enumeration of the Fines recorded in this volume, a few examples will be cited under each of the three heads mentioned above.

1st. In the 23rd of Henry II., Simon, brother of Ralph the Clerk, paid £20., and Robert, the Armorer, £5., for admission into the borough of Carlisle.

In the 6th of Richard I., Hugh de Mörville paid £100. for the Forestership.

In the 2d of John, William de Stuteville paid 3 palfreys for a market and two fairs, and in the 10th Richard de Luci paid one good palfrey for a market and fair at Ravenglas.

In the 3d of John, David the Painter paid one mark that his house in Carlisle might be a Burgage.

In the same year the Abbot of Holmcultram paid 10 marks and 2 palfreys for freedom from tolls and customs for all goods bought or sold by him in England and Ireland.

The fines paid by the city of Carlisle, and the four Royal manors for liberty to undertake their own farm have been already noticed.

2d. One of the fines of the most frequent occurrence under the second head is "pro recto" for a trial of right to any thing claimed. To expedite the trial a further fine was frequently paid "pro loquela," for a hearing before the King's Justices.

If the claim was established a fine, bearing relation to the value of the acquisition, was paid for "seisin," before the party was put in possession.

Fines were frequently paid for a "recognition of rights." Thus in the 28th of Henry II. Arthur Fitz Godard paid a fine of £100. and ten chascurs for a recognition of his right to one Knight's fee against the Countess of Coupland.

Parties sometimes paid fines that they might not be disseized of property without trial. Thus in the 25th of Henry II. William, the brother of Adam, the Son of Adam Fitz Richard, accounted for a fine of 40 marks that he might not be disseized of the land which his brother claimed against him, until judgment was obtained. In this case his brother, Adam the Son of Adam had paid a fine of 20 marks for seisin two years previous, and a further fine of 10 marks, that the King might receive his homage.

In the 2nd of Richard, Adam the Son of Enisant paid a fine of 20 marks for the recovery of a debt due to him from Earl David. In the 5th of Richard, Richard the Son of Troit paid a fine of 40 shillings for having an agreement with his Son Richard made before the Chancellor.

The same year the Prior of Carlisle paid 40*s.* for license to make an agreement.

In the reign of King John several instances occur of persons being deprived of lands and privileges, which had been granted to them in the previous reign, and these were only restored to them on payment of an additional fine. Thus Adam the Cook had to pay, in the 3rd of John, a fine of £5. for seisin of Old Salkeld, which had been claimed for the Crown, notwithstanding that he held charters not only from King Richard, but from John himself.

In the 5th of John, Richard de Luci paid 15 marks for having a jury to inquire into the Customs of Coupland, of which he was lord.

3d. In many instances the cause of an amercement is not noticed, but the name of the party, and the amount for which he is liable, are entered as "pro misericordia." In others, only general information is given of the nature of the offence, a party being amerced for a transgression, a disseisin, or a default; or for a false statement, a false essoigne, a false claim, or the like. Sometimes the fine is for a conviction on a charge which the party denied, without any statement of the nature of the charge.

A numerous class of fines is for non-production of parties, charged with offences, by their sureties.

In the 16th of Henry II., the Men of William the Moneyer were fined £5. for an affray (mesleta); and three other parties were fined 2 marks for an affray with the Canon's men.

Many fines occur for having the King's peace for being with his enemies, as in the case of Robert de Hodeuma and others in the 23rd of Henry II., or for being in communication with the King's enemies, as in the case of Gilbert de Levington, the same year.

In the 25th of Henry II., a fine of £1000. was imposed on Gilbert the Son of Fergus, for having the King's benevolence

In the 27th, Alan the Moneyer was fined 1 mark for selling wine contrary to the Assize; and Gamel was fined half a mark for the same offence, in the 5th of Richard I.

In the 33rd of Henry II., Robert de Vaux was fined 100 marks for various disseisins, for conniving at the escape of prisoners, and for sustaining the currency of the old coinage after prohibition. For the last offence William his Clerk had been previously fined 5 marks. Several fines occur for concealment of pleas, concealment of escheats, and other matters. In the 3rd of Richard I., the County of Coupland was fined 2 marks for concealment respecting the lands of Richard de Luci, and fines were imposed on Richard himself, and other parties, for the same offence.

In the 2d of John, William de Stuteville, the sheriff, was fined two palfreys for not executing the King's precept.

In the 10th of John, William of Egremont and others, paid a fine of 5 marks to be admitted to bail for the homicide of Walter Bell.

In the 12th of John, Robert de Vaux was fined his five best palfreys for the King's silence respecting the wife of Robert Pinel.

X. The casual revenue was chiefly derived from two sources, Treasure found, and the goods of Outlaws, Felons, Suicides, and persons accidentally killed or drowned.

In the 5th of Henry II., the sheriff accounts for gold of two pennies weight, and in the 28th of the same reign for gold found of the same weight.

In the 12th of Henry II., is an account of the goods of three robbers £1. 9s. 6d., and in the 19th year, of three fugitives through the forest, £1. 9s. 6d.

The following parties were outlawed and their goods seized during the troubled times of Henry II., towards the close of his reign.

In the 26th year, Orm, the Son of Leising, and Ketelle. The goods of the former produced £1. 5s., of the latter, 3 shillings.

In the 27th William Fitz Suein : value of goods £5. 18s. 5d.

In the 31st Gospatric Brun, and Britius : value of goods £3. 0s. 1d.

In the 32nd Ordred, whose goods produced £1. 6s., and the following year, Unspac, Gospatric Belle, Jordan, and Richard of Schelton, Henry Collen, and William Scherewind, the total proceeds of whose goods were £1. 13s. 1d.

In the 4th of John, the Heir of William Fitz-Aldelin, a former sheriff, was charged with goods received during his shrievalty, of Orm and Gillechrist, £1. 2s. 5d., and of other parties, small sums amounting to 13s. 3d. Amongst them are the goods of the malefactors "qui roberavant" Walter le Niewlier, the goods of one party drowned, and the horse of another.

In the 5th of John are accounted for, the goods of Noel, a fugitive, 16 shillings, and of 4 other fugitives, 5s. 6d.

In the 9th of John, Robert de Curtenai is charged £26. 12s. for the goods of William de Stuteville, his predecessor in the shrievalty, who died indebted to the Crown.

A remarkable item appears in the Roll of the 3d of Richard I., being the debts due to Aaron, the Jew of Lincoln, his estate having been seized into the King's hands. The debts of parties in Cumberland and Northumberland amount to £286. 10s. 8d., and the debtors comprise Robert, the Archdeacon of Carlisle, for whom Henry, the Chaplain of Langley, and Richard, the Archdeacon, are sureties, Odinel de Umfreville, Robert de Brus, Robert the Chaplain, and Adam of Carlisle.

SECTION III.

Westmorland—Baronies of Appleby and Kendal—Westmorland Pipe-Rolls—
Farm of the County and Noutgeld—Escheats—Tallages and Scutages—Relief, Wardship, and Marriage—Fines—Casual Revenue—County of Durham—
Origin of the Palatine Powers of the Bishop—Early Pipe-Rolls of Durham.

THE present County of Westmorland consists of the two Baronies of Appleby and Kendal, of which the former was a portion of the antient Earldom of Carlisle; the latter was included in Amounderness, which, at the period of the Domesday survey, comprised, in addition, the South-western corner of Cumberland, all Lancashire North of the Ribble, and the Wapontake of Ewecross, in Yorkshire. The name of Westmorland was originally confined to the district of Appleby, which is still popularly known as the Barony of Westmorland. The position of this comparatively level tract, to the West of a range of lofty moors, by which it is separated from Yorkshire, suggests an obvious derivation, "West-moor-land," the "land west of the moors, as North-Humber-land is the land north of the Humber. It has been remarked that the antient orthography of the name does not support this view, but the spelling of local names in the oldest records is often fanciful and capricious, and quite inconsistent with their etymology. Whatever weight, however, there may be in the objection, it is consistent with the authority of the documents in the present volume. In the Pipe Roll of the 31st of Henry I., the name is spelt Westmaricland, in which form, or as Westmariland, it occurs throughout the reign of Henry II. In the succeeding reigns of Richard I., and John, the orthography is Westmericland and Westmeriland.

The Barony of Appleby, was included in the grant to Ranulph de Meshines, of the Earldom of Carlisle.* Kendal, with all the rest of Amounderness, was in the hands of the Crown at the date of the compilation of Doomsday, but was afterwards in the possession of Yvo Tailboise,† who appears to have been also the proprietor of the Manor of Kirby Stephen, in the Barony of Appleby.‡

On the death of Yvo, Ranulph de Meschines succeeded to his large possessions, in right of Lucia, his wife, the widow of Roger de Romara. Lucia, in her second widowhood, had livery of the lands which had belonged to Yvo Tailboise in Lincolnshire, and transmitted them to her son, William de Romara. The Barony of Kendal, however, passed into other hands. The particulars of this alienation are incidentally explained by Ordericus Vitalis, who tells us, that about the year 1122 William de Romara took up arms against his sovereign, because he refused to restore his mother's inheritance, which her husband Ranulph had given in exchange for the County of Chester; nor did he desist until the King gave him competent satisfaction, and yielded a large part of his claim. The portion restored consisted, doubtless, of the Lincolnshire estates, but Kendal was retained, being immediately adjacent to the Earldom of Carlisle, which Ranulph had enjoyed in his own right, until he succeeded to the Earldom of Chester.

The Crown was thus in possession of the whole country lying between the Solway and the Duddon, which was divided into two counties, Carliol and Westmarieland, several years, at least, before the 31st of Henry I., as appears by the accounts of that year. The Barony of Westmorland was probably in the possession of Scotland during the reign of Stephen, for in the subsequent claims of the Scottish Kings, the County of Westmorland is included, as well as Cumberland and Northumberland.* Kendal, in the meantime, became the property of Nigel de Albini, whose son, Roger de Mowbray, granted it to William de Lancaster. Nigel de Albini and William de Lancaster are both mentioned as former possessors of the barony, in a charter of Richard I. to Gilbert the son of Roger Fitz-Reinfrid, and it further appears from the return of Knights' fees, in the Black Book of the Exchequer, that William derived his title from Roger de Mowbray, in the reign of King Stephen.

* Ranulph bestowed the Churches of Appleby on the Abbey of St Leonard's, at York.—Monasticon.

† Yvo doubtless owed this substantial mark of favour to his adherence to the interest of William Rufus against his brother Robert. When Ralf Flambard, Bishop of Durham, who was a partizan of the Duke of Normandy, was for a time deprived of his bishopric, Yvo Tailboise was one of the Custodes of the temporalities.

‡ See Charter of Yvo Tailboise to the Monastery of Saint Mary, York, under Stephen, its first Abbot, 1088-1112.—Monasticon.

It is necessary to state thus distinctly the authorities from which the true descent of the Barony of Kendal is derived, because a fictitious pedigree is preserved amongst the muniments of the Abbey of Saint Mary at York, which traces the genealogy of William de Lancaster from Yvo Tailboise. With so little skill has this pedigree been fabricated, that the names of Eltred and Ketel are introduced as those of the son and grandson of Yvo, "a remarkable instance," says Dr. Whitaker, if true, "of the adoption of Saxon names into a Norman family." Ketel, the son of Eltred, Yvo Tailboise, and William de Lancaster, all appear from the chartulary of Saint Mary's to have been benefactors of the Abbey, and an ignorant Monk has joined their names as links in one pedigree. William de Lancaster had a son of the same name, whose daughter and heiress was given by Richard I. in marriage to Gilbert Fitz-Roger Fitz-Reinfrid. The wife of the first and mother of the second William de Lancaster is stated, in the pedigree above referred to, to have been Gundred, widow of the Earl of Warwick. The wife of the second William was, according to the same authority, Helwise de Stuteville. That she was called Helwise appears from a charter of her husband in the Cokersand chartulary. Her daughter is said to have borne the same name. William, the son of William, who, in the 25th of Henry II. paid a fine of 10 marks for license to have a duel with Gospatric, the son of Orm, is supposed by the historians of Westmorland to have been the second William de Lancaster; and a fine of the "men of William of Lancaster" is recorded in the 30th of the same reign.

The name of Gilbert Fitz-Reinfrid frequently occurs in the Pipe-Rolls of Richard I. and John. He died early in the reign of Henry III.

During the first seventeen years of Henry II. the Pipe-Rolls contain no accounts for Westmorland, the revenues of the county being in the meantime enjoyed by Hugh de Morville,* to whom the King also granted the castle and honour of Knaresborough, and other lands in Yorkshire.† On the murder of Thomas à Becket, of which he was one of the perpetrators, his possessions were forfeited to the crown, but no revenue was derived from them for the next three years, the only entry respecting Westmorland in the meantime being the record of a debt due from Elias of Appleby for livery of his land. We know that, for a year after the murder, De Morville remained with his confederates at his castle of Knaresborough, and it is probable that during this period he kept possession of Westmorland. The following year the northern counties were invaded by the King of Scotland, and in that succeeding, the Royal fortresses of Appleby and Brough were taken. In the former year there was a great deficiency in the revenue of the adjoining county of Cumberland, in consequence of the war, and in the latter the Sheriff did not account at all. It is not, therefore, surprising that Westmorland, which suffered much more severely, should have contributed nothing to the treasury till the 21st year. Dugdale has confounded the assassin of Thomas à Becket with another Hugh de Morville, who enjoyed the Barony of Burgh, in Cumberland, in the reigns of Richard I. and John, and whose name frequently occurs in connection with the Forest of that county, of which he had the hereditary custody. The first Hugh de Morville was the contemporary of Simon de Morville, the grandfather of his namesake, and obtained a grant of the Honour of Knaresborough the very year (4th of Henry II.) in which Simon had livery of his Cumberland Barony.

* This appears from several incidental notices in the earlier Pipe-Rolls in this volume.

The year previous to Becket's death, Hugh de Morville was a Justice Itinerant in Cumberland and Northumberland, from which we may infer that he was not at that period a young man. We have conclusive testimony, however, which renders conjecture unnecessary, both as to the time and place of his decease. Hovedon, who lived in the next age, and had the best means of information, expressly tells us, that all the murderers of Becket closed their lives at Jerusalem, and were buried in front of the Temple; whilst the biographers of the martyr alledge, as a singular instance of Divine retribution, that not one of the perpetrators of his death survived the crime three years.

In the 23d of Henry II., Ranulph de Glanville rendered an account of the revenues of Westmorland for that and the two preceding years, and annual accounts for the 24th and 25th. Pleas of the Crown, were held in the 29th, 30th, and 31st years, but with this exception, from the 25th of Henry II. to the end of the reign, the King derived no revenue from Westmorland. In the Pipe-Roll of the 2d of Richard I., it is styled the "Honor" of Westmorland, which clearly indicates that it had been in the mean time in the possession of a subject.

A short entry in the accounts of the 24th of Henry II. affords the only information we possess of the proprietorship.

"Theobald de Valeines owes £30. for 6 Knights' fees."

This comprised the entire county; the Barony of Appleby, with the Bailiwick, being rated as 4 Knights' fees, and Kendal as 2.

Kendal, at this period, was clearly held of the Honor of Westmorland, as it had been previously of the Mowbrays; Gilbert Fitz-Reinfrid being the first who held it directly of the Crown. Although the Lancaster family were the possessors of the soil, they did suit to the shire courts of Westmorland, and paid to its lord Cornage and Customs, as appears both from the Pipe-Rolls and the charter of Richard I. The fishery also belonged to the feudal superior.

Theobald was not in possession of Westmorland until the 26th year, nor do the accounts of the 25th notice the debt due from him for his relief. He probably owed this magnificent provision to his connection with Ranulph de Glanville, the husband of his daughter* who enjoyed the unlimited favour of his sovereign. On the accession of Richard I., Glanville was deprived of all his appointments, and subjected to a heavy fine. The Royal displeasure seems to have extended to his father-in-law, for the Honor of Westmorland was seized into the King's hands. Alan de Veleines, probably a son of Theobald had married the heiress of Torphin, of Allerston, with whom besides property in Yorkshire he had the Manor of Crosby Ravensworth, and lands at Tebay, in Westmorland. These possessions were confirmed to him by Richard I. to be held by Knight-service, and freed from Noutgeld. At the same time Gilbert Fitz-Reinfrid had a charter by which he held the Barony of Kendal with the fishery by the service of two Knights, freed from Noutgeld. From the 2nd of Richard I. there is a regular series of Westmorland Pipe-Rolls to the 4th of John, when Robert de Vipont had a grant of the Barony and Bailiwick, with the Castles of Appleby and Brough, excepting only the right of holding pleas of the Crown, and saving the Royal dignity. The subsequent accounts are accordingly confined to arrears, and a record of fines and amercements before the Justices Itinerant.

In the 31st of Henry I. the amount paid into the Treasury on account of the farm of the County of Westmorland was £27. 1s. 7d., and £3. was expended in fixed alms. There remained an arrear, the amount of which, owing to the decayed state of the record, cannot be ascertained. The payment on account of Noutgeld was £43., with an unascertained arrear.

The Farm of the County in the 21st of Henry II. was £34. 8s. 10d.; in the 22nd, £38. 18s. 3d.; in the 23rd, £57. 4s. 4d.; in the 24th, £90. 2s. 5d.; and in the 25th, the same. From these amounts, however, must be deducted £10. annually, the value of the Manor of Sowerby, which had been granted to the Knights Templars; and for each of the two last years a further sum of £4.

* Dugdale's Baronage.

5s. 2d. in consequence of grants to other parties.* Further allowances were made for lands wasted, and the expenses of restocking and restoring to culture, in the first three years, £45. 2s. 9d.; in the 24th year, £19. 6s. 3d.; and in the 25th, £6. 3s. 2d. In the 24th year the fishery at Kendal produced £1. The net receipts in each year are as follows:—

21st, ...	£9	7	11
22nd, ...	13	17	4
23rd, ...	33	3	5
24th, ...	56	15	0
25th, ...	69	16	1

No Noutgeld is charged in the 21st and 22nd years. In the 23rd, the payments amounted to £53. 1s. 5d., and in each of the two succeeding years the Sheriff accounts for £55. 19s. 3d. Of this the Barony of Kendal was charged with £14. 6s. 4d.; that of Appleby, with £41. 12s. 11d.

The following receipts occur under the head of "Perquisitions," being probably the fines and casual profits from the servile tenants:—

In the reigns of Richard I. and John, the Farm of the County and the Noutgeld are accounted for in one sum, and produced £117. 0s. 6d. annually till the 7th of Richard, when the rent was raised to £130. 2s. 4d. Both sums were subject to the following deductions, in consequence of the grants to Gilbert Fitz-Reinfrid and Alan de Valeines.

The Quittance to Alan de Valeines was continued to Hugh de Hastings, who married his widow, for several years, but ceased in the 2d of John.

In the 6th of Richard and several following years, Gilbert Fitz-Reinfrid is charged with the rent and Noutgeld of his Barony, which in the 1st of John had accumulated to £113. 0s. 5d., of which he has a discharge in full on payment of a fine of £100., having previously paid a fine of the same amount in the 9th and 10th of Richard I.

The terms of the fine of the 9th of Richard are “for having six librates of land, and quittance from Cornage, and other liberties, according to the tenor of a charter of the King.”

The fine in the 1st of John is for confirmation of his charters, for certain privileges within his estates in Lancashire, and for confirming the convention with King Richard respecting quittance from Cornage, and the peaceable possession of Kendal.

The following Escheats were in the hands of Hugh de Morville at the time of his forfeiture:—viz., Crosby Ravensworth, and Hoff, in custody; and Brampton, Whale, and the Mill at Kirby Stephen, in pledge. From these the Crown received—

In the 24th year John de Morville paid £5. 16s. 8d. to have Brampton restored to him. At the same time the mill was given up to Walthewe.

Crosby was the inheritance of Helen, the daughter of Torphin, in whose right it was possessed by Alan de Valeines.

Of the two manors which remained in the Crown, Whale had been the property of Ansketil, the servant, probably the same who afterwards occurs as Ansketil the provost, amongst the contributors to the Tallage of the 8th of Richard.

Of Hoff we have no information.

In the 10th of Richard, the Church of Brough was vacant, and the proceeds were £6. The whole sum was expended on the Church.

In the 4th of John, the lands of William de Coleby were in the hands of the Crown, and produced £1.

The same year the lands of Hugh de Hastings at Tebay, produced 13s. 9d.

There were no Aids, Scutages, or Tallages in those years of Henry II., during which Westmorland was in the hands of the Crown.

In the 8th of Richard I., the Knights and Cornage-tenants paid 20 marks for respite from an Aid till the King's arrival.

In the 1st of John was a Scutage. The only tenants by Knights'-service were, Gilbert Fitz-Reinfrid, and Hugh de Hastings. The former was excused payment on two Knights'-fees, the entry respecting the latter is imperfect.

There were Tallages in the 8th, 9th, and 10th of Richard, and in the 2nd of John. That of the 9th of Richard amounted to £17. 8s. 8d., and is accounted for in one sum, under the title of "Tallage of the Villes and Drengi."

The particulars of the other Tallages are given below :—

In the 3rd of John a fine of 50 marks was imposed on the Drengi of Westmorland, as the price of their exemption from foreign service (ne transfretent). Similar fines were paid by the following parties:—

Wido de Holebec, 10 marks and 3 palfreys.

Alan, son of Benedict, £5.

Adam de Kirby, £1.

The Drengi who contributed to this payment of 50 marks were 18 in number. Several others had been relieved from service by Drengage, and a free tenure substituted, whilst Hugh de Morville was Lord of Westmorland. In the 25th of Henry II., a similar favour was granted to Walter, son of Durand.

Drengage was not unknown in Cumberland, but the only Crown manor in which we have any evidence of its existence was † In the Tallage, 8th Richard, the Burgesses of Appleby were charged a further sum of £13. 13s. 4d., from the payment of which they were ultimately excused.

Ousby, in which Richard and Henry occur as Drengi; both contributed to the Scutage of the 6th of John.*

Drengi, or Dreinni, also existed in Durham and Northumberland, and contributed, with the Taini or Theini, and the Firmarii, to the Tallages. The tenure by Theinage does not occur in the Records of Cumberland or Westmorland. Two Firmarii (tenants at rack-rent), Astin and Robert, are noticed amongst the parties on whom the Tallage of the 2d of John was levied in Westmorland.

The Drengi were the lowest class, who had a permanent interest in the land they held. They seem to have rendered to their lord personal service in the operations of husbandry. The term, Drengage (quasi Dreccanage), was probably derived from the Saxon "dreccan," the root of our English word "drudge."

The only payments for Relief during the reign of Henry II. have been already referred to, those made by Elias of Appleby, and by Theobald de Valeines. No profits of Wardship or Marriage accrued during the same period.

The following sums are charged in the two succeeding reigns:—

7th Richard I., Robert, son of Robert de Suleby, 80 marks, for livery of his father's land.

8th Richard I., Garnel of Clifton, and John of Dene, 3 marks, for the inheritance of 1 carucate of land at Helton.

In the same year, Walter Durand, 1 mark, for livery of his land at Fauclea.

1st of John, Hugh de Coteford, 10 marks, for livery of land at Asby, late the property of his uncle, Richard de Coteford.

3rd of John, William Engaine, 10 marks and 1 chascur, for livery of his father's lands.

In the same year, Wido de Holebec, £8. 6s. 8d. and two palfreys, for his relief.

4th of John, William, son of Harvey, £1., for livery of his land.

* In the 8th of Richard I., Richard of Ousby, and Henry, the son of Adam of Ousby, are charged, the former half a mark, the latter 10 shillings, towards the Tallage of Northumberland; but their connection with that county does not appear.

4th of John, Gilbert Fitz-Robert, £10., for livery of the land which his brother William held by Cornage.

3rd of John, Roger de Beauchamp, and Grace, late the wife of Thomas son of Gospatric, 100 marks for the wardship of the heir of the said Thomas.

In the same year, Henry of Knaresborough, 15 marks, for the wardship of the heir of his brother Lawrence ; the marriage of his widow, with her dower, to remain in the King's hands.

1st of John, Lunetta, the widow of Roger Cotesford, 4 marks, for liberty to marry as she pleased.

4th of John, Sybille, the widow of John Tailboise, 2 marks, for the like liberty.

1st of John, Adam Painel, £166. 13s. 4d., for having in marriage the widow of William Fitz-William.

A great many fines were inflicted upon parties who were concerned in the surrender of Appleby to the Scots in 1174. Gospatric, the son of Orm, was fined 500 marks ; Ralph of Kendal, 40 marks ; Humphrey Malchael, 15 marks ; John de Morville, £20 ; Robert Coleman and Richard de Cotesford, £10. each ; Robert, the Dapifer of Hugh de Morville, £5. ; William the Clerk of Appleby, 10 marks ; Gilbert Engaine, and Adam the Mercer, £5. each ; and 15 others, smaller sums. Udard de Brohan was fined 40 marks for being with the King's enemies ; and Reginald the Cook, £5., for sending them their victuals.

The fines for the surrender of the Castle appear somewhat harsh, as it was totally unprovided for a siege. Jordan Fantosme says—“The King (of Scotland) had very soon the Castle of Appleby. There were no people in it, but it was quite unguarded. Gospatric, the son of Horm, an old grey-headed Englishman, was the constable ; he soon cried mercy.” Orm, the father of this old Englishman, was the son of Ketel, who, in the pedigree of the Barons of Kendal, is represented as the grandson of the Norman Baron, Yvo Tailboise.

In the 25th of Henry II., the Burgesses of Appleby paid a fine of 40 marks for a Charter of Liberties, the same as that enjoyed by the City of York. For a confirmation of this charter they paid 100 marks in the 2nd of John.

In the 5th of Richard, Waldeve, the Servant of Appleby, was fined half a mark for the escape of Agnes from his custody.

In the 7th of Richard, Henry de Wichenton is charged 10 marks for having the lands of Crosby and Lowther, and of Whale, to which he is entitled in right of Hawise, his wife. He further pays half a mark that it may be recorded in the Great Roll that Gerard Malkael, the heir of Humphrey Malkael, has declared before the Barons of the Exchequer that the lands of Crosby and Lowther are the right and inheritance of the said Henry, by his marriage with Hawise: that the said Gerard quits claim to the lands, and delivers up the charter, which Humphrey Malkael had from Hugh de Morville: that in return the said Henry has given to Gerard three bovates of land in Crosby. This land was afterwards called "Crosby Gerard," to distinguish it from other places of the same name. It is now corruptly written "Crosby Garret."

In the 9th of Richard, the Canons of Carlisle pay half a mark for the enrolment of certain grants.

The same year, Robert de Belham pays half a mark on the same account.

In the 1st of John, Herbert de Tebay pays 10 marks, for putting his son Robert into his inheritance at Tebay.

The same year, Hugh de Hastings accounts for 100 marks, for having his lands at Tebay in inheritance; and 20 marks and 1 palfrey, for free warren in Tebay and Crosby.

In the 4th of John, Walter, Parson of Morland, pays £5., that he may not be disturbed.

The same year, Peter de Stokes is charged half a mark for the enrolment of his purchase of Little Blaculuselee.

Henry of Knaresborough pays 10 marks to be excused from serving the office of Coroner.

Robert Fit-Adam accounts for a fine of 40 marks, in discharge of the debts due by his father to the King, amounting to £198. 6s. 6d.

The Ville of Appleby is fined £5., on account of a robbery.

Hugh Copman is fined half a mark for making an agreement without licence.

In the 11th of John, Gilbert Fitz-Reinfrid accounts for 5 pal-freys, that he may have the Manor of Newby, late the property of Ranulph de Sules, at the yearly rent of 3 marks.

The largest item of casual Revenue recorded in these Rolls is a sum of £65. 9s., received from Henry the Clerk of Hugh de Morville, being the proceeds of the sale of stock upon the several manors belonging to the Honor of Westmorland. The money so obtained was applied towards restocking the manors, in addition to sums already mentioned, which were charged against the Farm of the County. This item appears in the accounts of the 24th of Henry II., being the first that were rendered by Ranulph de Glanville himself, those of the three previous years being verified by the oath of Reiner, his dapifer or steward. It is probable, therefore, that this sum had been received by Ranulph when he first undertook the administration of the county, as it would hardly, otherwise, have been forthcoming five or six years after De Morville's forfeiture, and two or three years after his death.

There are several entries of moneys received from the sale of the goods of felons and others:—

The County of Durham had no separate existence at the era of the Norman Conquest, nor is there any reason to suppose that the Bishops had any greater territorial privileges than other possessors of property in Northumberland.

Mr. Surtees, the late acute and indefatigable historian of the county, found no trace of the palatine power of the Bishops of Durham prior to the episcopate of Walcher, A.D. 1072. The palatine jurisdiction, however, was not new, but had been exercised ever since the extinction of the Kingdom of Northumberland by the Earls of that province.*

In Walcher were combined the two dignities of Earl of Northumberland and Bishop of Durham, and it was easy for him, in the capacity of Bishop, to usurp that authority to which he had an undoubted right as Earl. On his death the offices were separated, and the Crown seems to have taken the opportunity of lessening the influence of a too powerful Earldom, by conferring a large share of temporal power on the Bishop. The Earl, however, still possessed some rights within the territory of the Church, whilst the Bishop was resolved to establish complete independence. The interference of the King became necessary, and we are in possession of the terms of accommodation. The award was made by William Rufus, and the parties to it were William de Karilepho and Robert de Mowbray.† The Bishop obtained all that he sought, on payment to the Earl of £100.

The Pipe-Roll of the 31st of Henry I. contains an account of the revenues of the See of Durham for rather more than two years, from the death of Bishop Flambard, September 5, 1128. The account is in duplicate, the first copy being cancelled (but still legible), and superseded by one more perfect, in which the custodes of the Bishopric are credited with several additional payments.

The earliest account in the present volume is from the Pipe-Roll of the 8th of Richard I., and embraces three-quarters of a year,

* The almost unlimited authority of the Earls of Northumberland may be ascertained from the recapitulation of their privileges in the Charter of Richard I. to Bishop Pudsey, in the Appendix to the "Durham Historians," published by the Surtees Society.

† Fœdera (New Edit.), p. 5. The authenticity of the document is unquestioned, but there is an error in the date, A.D. 1100. Mowbray was deprived of his Earldom in 1092, and the Bishop died in 1095. The true date was, probably, 1091 or 1092, between William's restoration to his Bishopric and Mowbray's rebellion. The King was in the north in both years.

during which the See was vacant after the death of Bishop Pudsey. After the death of Philip of Poictou in 1211, the temporalities of the Bishopric were seven years in the hands of the Crown. The Pipe-Roll of the 13th of John includes a statement of receipts and expenditure for nearly three years and a half, and the succeeding Roll presents an account for one year. The Pipe-Roll of the 15th of John, by some unexplained mistake, instead of furnishing the accounts of that year, repeats the statement of the 13th year, going back to the death of the Bishop in the 10th. Taken together, however, these documents supply a large fund of information respecting the possessions of the Bishop, both before and after the compilation of the "Bolden-Buke," our chief authority respecting the early condition of the Palatinate. The account of the Scutage in the reign of Richard I. supplies a desideratum in that survey, by furnishing a list of the tenants in capite, thirty years later than that in the Black Book of the Exchequer. We have also distinct notice of the three inferior classes of tenants, the Thaners, the Dreinni or Drengi, and the Firmarii, or, as they are called in the earliest account, Smalemonni, Small-men.

The account of the 31st of Henry I. also establishes the original identity of the Cornage of Durham with the Noutgeld of Cumberland and Westmorland, the "Cornagium animalium" of the one answering to the "Geldum animalium" of the other.

SECTION IV.

Division of Cumberland into Baronies—Reservation of the City and Forest to the Crown—Descent of the Baronies ; Gilsland ; Lyddale ; Burgh ; Coup-land ; Allerdale ; Wigton ; Graystock ; Levington—Manors within the Forest—Property in Carlisle.

THE same policy which induced the Crown to maintain the Earldoms of Northumberland and Cumberland, as barriers against the Scots, was acted upon by Ranulph de Meschines, when he became possessed of the latter province. He divided the lands on his northern frontier into three Baronies, which he bestowed on his warlike followers, Gilsland and Lyddale commanding the passes into Scotland by land, and Burgh extending along the shores of the Solway. When Henry I. resumed possession of Cumberland, he founded five additional Baronies, Coupland, Allerdale, Wigton, Graystock, and Levington, reserving to the Crown the City of Carlisle, and the Forest of Cumberland.

The Forest extended from the walls of the city to the furthest extremity of the county, in the direction of Penrith. Within these limits, besides the Forest lands, were many Manors, some of Royal Demesne, others held by individuals under grants from the Crown. These Manors, as well as the Baronies above-mentioned, will be traced through their several possessors from the time of Henry I. to the end of the reign of John.

In addition to the particulars contained in the Rolls in the present volume, the Inquisitions in the Testa de Neville throw considerable light on this inquiry. Where information is derived from other sources, the authorities will be cited, the object being to disclose, at one view, all that is known of the descent of landed property in Cumberland down to the reign of Henry III. As regards

Westmorland, no similar Inquisitions exist, and all the information which is to be found in the Pipe-Rolls on this head, has been already given.

GILSLAND.

"The first Lord of Gilsland," says Camden, "that I read of, was William Meschines, brother of Ranulph, who was not able to get it out of the hands of the Scots; for Gill, son of Bueth, held the greatest part of it by force of arms."

William de Meschines received from Henry I. an ample compensation in the grant of the rich and extensive Barony of Cope-land, and Gilbert, son of Bueth, continued to enjoy Gilsland to the day of his death.

One of the first acts of Henry II., on recovering the Northern Counties, was to give Hubert de Vaux "all that land which Gilbert, the son of Beot, had on the day of his death, of whomsoever he held it."* This last expression confirms the statement of Camden, that Gilbert held it by force of arms against the legal owner. From this Gilbert, or Gills, the Barony doubtless derived its name. The family of Bueth still existed in Cumberiand in the 23rd of Henry II., when Robert, son of Bueth, was fined "for being with the King's enemies," during the recent insurrection.

The family of De Vaux took their name from their possessions in Normandy, which they still enjoyed in the reign of King John.† Hubert was succeeded by his son Robert, in the 11th of Henry II. Robert de Vaux was Sheriff of Cumberland from the 21st to the 31st of this reign. His gallant defence of the City and Castle of Carlisle checked the progress of the King of Scotland, and was of essential service in restraining the operations of "the young King."‡ Towards the close of his life these services seem to have been forgotten, and he was subjected, as has already been seen, to various heavy fines.* He was the founder of the Priory of Lanercost. There seems no foundation for the story that this act of piety was done in expiation of the murder of Gills Bueth, who was dead before any of the Vaux family had any connection with Gilsland. In the foundation charter he mentions Hubert, his father, and Grace, his mother. He is stated, by Dugdale, to have married Ada, daughter of William Engaigne,† and to have left a son, Robert, who succeeded him.

* Cartæ Antiquæ, in the Tower. The charter is printed in "Nicholson and Burn's History of Cumberland."

† Rotuli Normaniz, 4th of John, "Terra de Vallibus."

The last statement, at all events, is incorrect, for he was succeeded by his brother Ranulph, who, in the 6th of Richard I., paid 50 marks for livery of his land, and 100 marks as a composition for the arrears of fines still due.

He died in the 1st of John, leaving a son, Robert, a minor, who was the Ward of the Archbishop Canterbury.

The Archbishop of Canterbury was excused from contributing to the Scutages of the 3rd, 4th, and 5th of John.

Robert de Vaux, being of age in the 7th of John, was assessed to the Scutage, but was excused payment.

In the 12th, he was fined 750 marks "for having the King's benevolence." Of this he paid 400 marks; but the next year a fine of 2000 marks was imposed upon him (including the arrear) "for having the King's grace, and quittance from all debts which he owes to the King, as well as his debts due to the Jews and others." For this sum his lands were seized by the Crown, and he was arrested. During the year they produced £330., and he was then released from prison, and his lands given in charge to his mother Alicia, on finding security for the balance. In the 16th of John there still remained an arrear of £666. 13s. 4d., which was commuted on these terms, that he should find, for the King's service, 2 knights and 20 servants, well armed, for 1 year, and 1 knight and 20 servants the year following.

* Section II., "Fines and Amercements."

† Ada Engaigne was the wife of Simon de Morville, who died A. D. 1167. If she survived him, she could not, at his death, be less than 50 years of age, for in the year 1205, 38 years afterwards, the daughters of her grandson, Hugh de Morville, were both married. It is not improbable that Robert de Vaux married Ada after the death of her first husband, but he certainly left no issue.

LYDDALE.

Turgis Brundis was the first Lord of Lyddale, by grant from Ranulph de Meschines. His successor was Guy, who had a son, Ranulph.* The Barony passed with the heiress of the family to Nicholas de Stuteville, who is inadvertently described by Dugdale as the son of Willam, although he refers to the Close Roll of the 7th of John, which expressly states that they were brothers. This Nicholas paid £5. in the 3rd, and 20 marks in the 5th of John, "ne transfretet." His son, of the same name, is described in the Testa de Neville, as the proprietor of the Barony, and as the successor of Turgis Brundus.

BURGH.

The Barony of Burgh was given by Ranulph de Meschines to Robert de Trivers. His daughter Ebria, as we learn from the Holm-Cultram Register, cited by Dugdale, married Ranulph Engaigne. Ranulph had a son William, whose daughter Ada was married to Simon de Morville, and had two sons, Roger and Richard. Roger was the father of Hugh de Morville. Simon de Morville had livery of the lands of Ranulph Engaigne in the 4th of Henry II. He died in the 13th. Hugh de Morville married Helwyse de Stuteville, with whom, according to Dugdale, he had the Manors of Kirk Oswald and Lazonby. This statement, however, is incorrect. Kirk Oswald was the property of his grandfather in the 13th of Henry II. Lazonby may have been granted to the Stuteville's, for, although it was in the possession of Simon de Morville, it was resumed by the Crown, of which it was held during pleasure, on his death. Hugh de Morville died in the 4th of John, leaving two daughters, Alda, the wife of Richard de Luci, and Johanna, afterwards married to Gernun, between whom their father's father's property was divided. Helwyse, his widow, paid 60 marks that she might not be compelled to marry. She was afterwards the wife of William Fitz-Ranulph, Baron of Graystock, and in the 11th of John, in her second widowhood, was in the custody of Robert de Vipont. Richard de Luci died in the 15th of John, and his widow, by her marriage with Thomas de Multon, carried the De Morville property into that family.

COPELAND.

Henry I. granted Copeland to William de Meschines, and Allerdale to Waldieve, son of Gospatric. The two baronies were united by the marriage of Alice de Romeli, the grand-daughter of William de Meschines, to William Fitz-Duncan, the third in descent from Waldieve.

Alice, from her mother, of the same name, inherited Copeland, and from her father, Robert de Romeli, Shipton.

The issue of her marriage with William Fitz-Duncan was three daughters, Cicily, Amabil, and Alice. Cicily enjoyed her father's Barony of Shipton, whilst her mother's inheritance was divided between her two sisters. Amabil had Copeland, with the exception of "the five viles" between Cocker and Derwent, afterwards known as the Honour of Cockermouth; Alice had Allerdale and "the five viles." Cicily was successively the wife of Alexander Fitz-Gerald, and of William le Grosse, Earl of Albemarle. Reginald de Luci was the husband of Amabil of Copeland, and had also the wardship of her sister Alice. He was, probably, a brother or near relative of Richard de Luci, who was a Justice Itinerant in Cumberland in the reign of Henry II., at which time he held the office of Justicier of England.

In the 8th of Henry II., Richard de Luci has an allowance of £2. 16s., and in the 11th, £2. 15s. 8d. out of the Noutgeld. It is probable that he then enjoyed the wardship of the two sisters, as there is no other trace of any other connection which he had with Cumberland.

In the 27th of Henry II., mention occurs of Richard de Luci's men, and the year following, and also in the 31st, his wife occurs as Countess of Copeland.

In the 3rd of Richard, "the County of Copeland" is fined 2 marks for concealment respecting the lands of Reginald de Luci. Reginald is himself fined 5 shillings and 11 pence, Thomas de Dene 20 shillings, and William of Kelington half a mark, for the same.

In the 2d of John, Richard, son of Reginald de Luci, paid 300 marks for livery of his land in Copeland and Cambridge, and for liberty to marry as he choose. In the 3rd of John he paid £10., "ne transfretet," and 30 marks in the 5th. In the latter year he paid 15 marks, and 1 palfrey, for an inquiry for a jury as to the ancient customs of Copeland, and the services of the free-tenants.

In the 10th of John, he paid 1 good palfrey for an annual fair and weekly market at Ravenglass.

He died in the 15th, and Alda, his widow, had livery of her land. She was, as has been already mentioned, one of the co-heiresses of Hugh de Morville. Her second husband, Thomas de Multon, obtained the marriage of her two daughters, the heiresses of Richard de Luci, and bestowed Amabil on his son Lambert, and Alice on his son Allan.

The Barony of Copeland contained within it several Manors held of the lord by military tenure. "The Knights of Copeland" are more than once mentioned collectively. In the 7th of Richard, the Knights of Copeland, and of the five vills, contributed towards a fine of £5., and £2. respectively. Several of these Knights are noticed individually.

In the 28th of Henry II., Arthur Fitz-Godard (of Millum) accounted for £100., and 10 chascurs, for the recognition of his right to one Knight's fee against the Countess of Copeland. On his death in the 30th, Henry Fitz-Arthur accounts for the arrear still due.

In the 31st Henry II., Benedict de Pennington (of Mulcaster) occurs; and in the 3rd of Richard, Thomas, son of Gospatric (of Workington).

In the 27th of Henry II., Robert de Lamplo paid 40 shillings for the recognition of his right to 3 carucates in Harlekard.

Three members of the family of Le Fleming are noticed, viz., Reiner Flandrensis in the 27th, and Walter and Randal in the 31st of Henry II.

Copeland was held free of Cornage, by the service of joining the armies of Wales and Scotland at the King's command. In King John's reign it was rated at 1 Knight's fee.

ALLERDALE.

Waldieve, the first Lord of Allerdale, had a son Allan, and Allan, a son Waldieve, and a daughter, Octreda. The latter, on her brother's death without issue, succeeded to the Barony, which she transmitted to William Fitz-Duncan, her son, by Duncan Earl of Murray. The marriage of William Fitz-Duncan to Alice de Romeli, and its issue, have been already detailed. Alice, their daughter, the heiress of Allerdale, although twice married, retained the surname of her maternal grandfather, Robert de Romeli. Her first husband, Gilbert Pipard, was Sheriff of Lancaster and Justice Itinerant in Herefordshire in the 1st of Richard. In the 3rd and 4th of Richard he held the Forest of Allerdale of the Crown, at the yearly rent of 3 marks.

Her second husband, Robert de Curtenai, was Sheriff of Cumberland in the 4th and 5th of John. Their marriage seems to have taken place in the 7th of Richard I., for in that year we have notice of a suit instituted by Alice de Romeli, in her own right, against Robert de Umbradan, respecting a tenement in Great Crosby; and in the course of the same year, Robert de Curtenai occurs as Lord of the five vills. In the 5th of John, he was assessed to the Scutage 20 mark, for the Barony which was Gilbert Pipard's.

In the 11th of John, Alice de Romeli, again a widow, accounts for £500., and 10 palfreys, for livery of the lands of her own inheritance, and for dower out of the estates of Robert de Curtenai and Gilbert Pipard; also, that she may not be constrained to marry. The following year she was fined £100., "ne transfretet."

Estates in Allerdale, as in Copeland, were held of the Lord of the Barony, but the manor of Torpenhow, although within its limits, was held of the Crown. In the reign of Henry II., Philip de Valoignes was entitled to this estate, but Reginald de Luci, who then held the Barony as the guardian of Alice de Romeli, refused his homage, which was accepted by the Crown. Sybil, the daughter of Philip de Valoignes, became the wife of Robert de Stuteville. This Robert was the brother of Nicholas and William de Stuteville, as appears from the Close Roll of the 3rd of Henry III. Dugdale supposes Sybil to have been the second wife of their father, Robert de Stuteville, and makes no mention of a brother of that name. Robert de Stuteville contributed £5. to the Scutage of the 6th of John.

The name of Philip de Valoignes twice occurs in this volume. In the 24th of Henry II., he paid 60 marks for a defeasance. In the 31st, he paid 2 marks for a perambulation of his pasture.

WIGTON.

The original grantee of Wigton was Odard, the son of Hildret.* Odard and his father held respectively the Shrivealties of Northumberland and Cumberland in the 31st of Henry I.

Hildret had also grants of the manors of Gamelsby, Glassenby, and Croglin, which were afterwards enjoyed by others of his descendants, Odard being apparently a younger son. He left two sons, Adam, his successor, and William. Adam had a son Odard, who paid £5. towards the Scutage in the 3rd of John, and 5 marks in the 5th.

In the 27th of Henry II., his uncle William had a recognition against him of right to 3 carucates of land, for which he paid 3 marks. His wife's name was Milesent. She afterwards married Reginald, the son of Adam of Carlisle, and grandson of Robert Fitz-Troit.

In the 10th of John, Adam, son of Odard, had livery of this Barony.

* In the 31st of Henry I., Hildret, and Odard his son, paid 40s. for a grant of the land which belonged to Gamel, the son of Bern. On the Assize Roll of the 11th of John, this grant is enrolled, comprehending the lands of Gamel, son of Bern, and of Glassa, son of Brictric, the King's Drengagers, to be held by Noutgeld ("rendering yearly such animals as other freemen, as well French as English, pay, who hold of me in capite in Cumberland.")

LEVINGTON.

Levington was granted by Henry I. to Richard de Bogville. In the 31st of that reign, the Sheriff has an abatement of 13s. 4d. in respect of land granted to Richard the Knight. Richard himself accounts for the Noutgeld of Cumberland for the 27th, 28th, 29th, and 30th years. He had a son, Adam, whose wife, Juliana, survived him, and was living in the 21th of Henry II. This Adam had two sons, Adam, his successor in the Barony, and William of Westham, or Westlington. The latter paid £19. 13s. in the 25th of Henry II., that he might not be dispossessed by his elder brother. In the 23rd year, Gilbert de Levington, probably of this family, was fined 5 marks for having been in communication with the King's enemies.

Adam Fitz-Adam paid £5. to each of the Scutages of the 3rd and 5th of John. He was succeeded by his son, Richard de Levington.

GRAYSTOCK.

Graystock was granted by Henry I. to Forne, the son of Lyolph, who had a son, Yvo. Yvo had four sons, Walter, Robert, Adam, and William. In the 27th of Henry II., Ranulph, the son of Walter, was in possession of the Barony. The same year we meet with Henry, son of Robert, son of Yvo; Robert, son of Adam, son of Yvo; and William, son of William, son of Yvo. In the 5th of John, William, son of Ranulph, paid £5. in respect of this Barony, "ne transfretet." He married Helwyse de Stuteville, widow of Hugh de Morville, and died in the 11th of John, leaving a son, Thomas, who, as well as his widow, was in the custody of Robert de Vipont.

MANORS WITHIN THE FOREST OF CUMBERLAND.

When Henry II. recovered the county from the Scots, the following manors were in the hands of the Crown—Penrith, Salkeld, Lazonby, Langwathby, Edenhall, Scotby, and Corby.

The Escheats, during his reign, were—Castle Sowerby, Little Salkeld, Ousby, Upperby, Farmanby, Dalston, Stanwix, and Carlatton.

The following manors were held by Cornage under grants from Henry I.—Linstock, Carleton, Kirk Oswald, Renwick, Croglin, Gamelsby, Glassenby, Culgarth, Botcherby, and Scaleby.

Newton, Hutton, Ratton, and a small property without the walls of Carlisle, were held by Grand Serjeanty.

Penrith, Salkeld, Scothy, Castle Sowerby, Ousby, Dalston, Stanwix, and Carlatton, continued in the hands of the Crown at the close of the reign of John.

Langwathby was held by the Crown, except during the short period (5th to 18th Henry II.), when it was enjoyed by Henry Fitz-Sueine.

Edenhall was included in the grant to Henry Fitz-Sueine. After it reverted to the Crown, it was given to Peter de Brus, to be held as half a Knight's fee. In the 6th of Richard I., William de Brus was assessed 10*s.* towards the Scutage in respect of half a Knight's fee. He appears to have succeeded his brother, Robert de Brus, during that year. Robert de Brus appears on the roll of debtors of Aaron the Jew of Lincoln, in the 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th years. In the 7th, William is charged with his father's debt. The same year he pays to the Scutage 40*s.*; and in 1st of John, 1 mark. In the 13th, Edenhall was held with the wardship of Robert de Brus, a minor, by Adam of Carlisle, who paid 1 mark for Scutage. In the 16th, Robert de Turp pays 20*s.* to the Scutage. This branch of the family seems to have borne indifferently the name of Turp or Turb, and Brus. In the 16th of Henry II. we find mention of Peter de Turb; and in the 31st is a notice of Robert de Turb.

Lazonby was granted to Simon de Morville in the 12th of Henry II., to be held during pleasure. It reverted to the Crown the following year, on the death of the grantee, but was subsequently the property of his grandson, Hugh de Morville. Whether he held it in his own right, or, as Dugdale alleges, in right of his wife, Helwyse de Stuteville, is uncertain; but it had ceased to be a possession of the Crown on the occasion of the Tallage of the 23rd of Henry II.

Upperby, Farmanby, and Little Salkeld, were granted by Richard I. to Adam the cook of the Queen, his mother, to be held by the annual payment of one pound of pepper. Upperby is usually spelt in these records Hobrichtebi, but sometimes Uchtredebi. In the 28th of Henry II. we meet with Uchtred as a personal name. Farmanby is spelt Faremannibi, and in the 16th of Henry II., we find a person called Faremannus. Adam the Cook paid £1. in the 3rd, 3 marks in the 5th, and 2 marks in the 6th of John, "ne transfretet."

Linstock and Carleton were granted by Henry I. to Walter, his chaplain, with license to bestow them on the Monastery of Carlisle, of which he became an inmate. They were enjoyed free of Noutgeld, for which the ancient charge had been £1. 17s. 6d.

Corby was granted at the same time as Gilsland, by Henry II., to Hubert de Vaux. It was, however, alienated at a very early period, for William, son of Odard, was the proprietor in the 13th of that reign. In the 27th, he paid a fine of 3 marks for a recognition of his right against his nephew, Odard, Baron of Wigton.

Kirk Oswald was the property of Simon de Morville in the 13th of Henry II. Dugdale says that Kirk Oswald, as well as Lazonby, came to Hugh de Morville, the grandson of Simon, with Helwyse de Stuteville, his wife. The De Morville estates, at the time of the Inquisitions in the "Testa de Neville," were in the hands of Richard de Luci and Richard Gernun, and the whole are there described as being derived from Robert de Trivers, the first Baron of Burgh.

Renwick, or Ravenwic, was granted by Henry I. to Adam, son of Alan, whose descendant, Adam de Staveley, is mentioned as the owner in the "Testa de Neville." Adam de Ravenwic occurs in the 24th and 26th of Henry II., and Ranulph de Ravenwic in the 3rd of Richard I. Adam de Staveley was rated at 2 marks to the Scutage of the 5th of John, and £5. the year following.

Croglin, including Newbiggen, was granted by Henry I. to Hildretus. In the reign of John it was the property of his descendant, Richard, son of Richard, son of Troit. This Richard was a partizan of John de Curci, Earl of Ulster, and shared his misfortunes. Croglin was seized by the Crown in the 4th of John, and restored in the 9th, on payment of 20 marks. Notwithstanding this seizure, he was made to contribute to the Scutages of the 5th and 6th of John, on each occasion half a mark, in respect of 3 bovates of land. To the previous Scutage of the 3rd year he paid £1. He left a son, Adam, who was in the wardship of Thomas Fitz-Bernard, clerk, at the close of the reign of John.

Gamelsby and Glassenby were also granted to Hildert, and were the property of Odard de Hodelma, his descendant, in Henry the Second's reign. Robert de Hodelma was concerned in the rebellion in favour of the young King Henry, and was fined 15 marks in the 23rd year. Gamelsby and Glassenby were seized by the Crown. Richard Fitz-Troit claimed them as next heir, but they were not given up till the 1st of John, when Richard, the son of Richard Fitz-Troit, obtained possession. When he was deprived of Croglin and Newbiggen, he also lost his recent acquisition, which he never recovered. In the meantime, Robert de Hodelma laid claim to his inheritance in the 2nd of John; and in the 12th, his son Odard succeeded in establishing his right. Odard died the next year, leaving a widow, Matilda, who was in the custody of Wilkin de Ireby. He also left two daughters, one of whom, with his estate, was in charge of Wilkin de Ireby, the other was in Scotland.

Culgarth was granted to Adam Fitz-Sueine, and is classed by the historians of Cumberland as a Barony. His possessions were of considerable extent, comprehending the two parishes of Melmerby and Kirkland, in the former of which Culgarth was situated, and Ainstable, separated by a wide tract of country from the others. The whole are locally situated in the Forest of Cumberland, and may be more properly considered as a number of detached manors belonging to one proprietor, than as a barony. Adam Fitz-Sueine was living in the 5th of Henry II. He had two daughters, Mabel, married to Jeffrey de Neville, the son of Allan de Neville, who held Forest Pleas in Cumberland in the 13th of Henry II., and Matilda, the wife of Adam de Monbegon. In the 5th of John, William de Neville, the son of Jeffrey was was excused his contribution to the Scutage, and Roger de Monbegon paid 20s. for his moiety of Culchet (Culgarth). When the Inquisitions in the "Testa de Neville" were taken, Roger de Monbegon was still living, and William de Neville's moiety was enjoyed by Simon Fitz-Walter and Alexander de Neville.

Botcharby was granted by Henry I. to Wydo the hunter, and was held by his descendant William, son of Odo, at the end of King John's reign. Odo of Botcherby, the father of this William, paid £1. towards each of the Scutages of the 3rd and 5th of John, and 2 marks in the 6th.

Scaleby was given by Henry I. to Richard the rider, whose grandson, Peter de Tilliol, had livery thereof in the 4th of Henry II., on payment of 50s. Simon, the son of Peter, had livery in the 30th of the same reign, on payment of 30 marks. He was fined £5. in the 3rd of John, "ne transfretet." He died in the same year, leaving a son in the custody of Jeffrey de Luci, who was excused the contribution due from this estate to the Scutage in the 5th year. In the 6th of John, Jeffrey de Luci paid a fine of 20 marks and 1 palfrey, for license to marry Margaret, the widow of Simon de Tilliol.

Besides this manor, Simon de Tilliol was possessed of the Manor of Huthwaite (Hotweit), within the Honour of Cockermouth. This, on his death, was seized into the hands of the Crown, and was accounted for by the Sheriff to the end of the reign.

Newton Reigni, so called from Turstan de Reigni, the grantee under Henry I., was held by the service of attending the King, in his expeditions into Scotland, with a hagbert. In the 29th of Henry II., Richard, brother of Adam de Newton, accounted for 10 marks for the recognition of the death of Emma, his neice. In the 31st, William de Reigni was the proprietor, but his right was challenged by William de Lascelles,* who is charged with 5 marks as to his right to half a Knight's fee. This charge is entered on each succeeding Roll to the 7th of Richard, but the amount was never paid, and the De Reigni family continued in undisturbed possession. In the 3rd of John, John de Reigni was fined 2 marks, "ne transfretet," in respect of 2 carrucates of land, for which it is expressly stated "he does not owe scutage." He was charged with the same amount in the 5th, and with 3 marks in the 6th.

* In the 1st of John, Duncan de Lascelles, and Christian, his wife, pay £10. for the Manor of Bolton, the inheritance of the said Christian, as he cannot obtain a fair proportion of those lands, which are in Scotland.

The manor of Catterlen, long a possession of the family of De Vaux, is in this parish. In the 3rd of John, William de Kersuniere is charged 5 marks, for a brief of morte-ancestor respecting one Knight's fee at Catterlen, against William de Vaux and Robert his son. The amount was never paid, and the manor remained in the De Vaux family. Peter de Vaux, apparently another son of William, paid 5 palfreys, in the 13th of John, for liberty to marry Emma, the widow of Walter Fitz-Gilbert, Baron of Whalton, in Northumberland, and 10 marks for having terms for the payment of a fine of 200 marks, due from the said Emma, for liberty to marry as she chose. Part of this fine was paid by Robert de Vaux and others, but by far the largest portion had been placed in the hands of Robert de Vaux, of Gilsland, and never accounted for by him. This formed one of the items of the debt for which he subsequently compounded. The connection between the families of Gilsland and Catterlen does not appear, although it is probable that William was the younger brother of Robert and Ranulph, and the son of Hubert, with whom the interest of the family in Cumberland commenced.

Hutton was held by the service of making the King's hay within the forest of Plumpton. It was granted on this tenure by Henry I. to one Edmund. In the 14th of Henry II., Adam, son of Edmund, paid 20s. for his relief. William, son of Adam, is the proprietor mentioned in the "Testa de Neville."

Ratton was held by the tenure of the custody of the King's hawks, and was given by Henry I. to Edwine. Unspac was the proprietor in Henry the Second's reign, until the 28th year, when it was in the hands of the Crown; and two servile tenants, Uctred and Walter, paid an annual rent of 5s. In the 1st of John, Henry de Ratton and his grandsons, Thomas and Reginald, are fined 1 mark for the peaceful enjoyment of the mill at Ratton, at a rent of 2*s.*, in addition to the old rent of 5*s.* This Thomas and Reginald de Ratton occur as the proprietors in the "Testa de Neville."

Twenty acres of land, adjoining the City of Carlisle, were held by Robert, son of Alexander, by the service of tending the King's pigs. In the 5th of John, he paid 4 marks for livery of this land, in right of his wife Eda, the daughter of John.

PROPERTY WITHIN THE CITY OF CARLISLE.

A branch of the Troit family resided in Carlisle. Robert de Carliol, son of Troit, was the brother of Richard, the proprietor of Croglin, and the brother or near relative of Odard de Hodelma, the owner of Gamelsby and Glassenby. He was also a kinsman of the Barons of Wigton. He was Sheriff of Cumberland from the 4th to the 20th of Henry II., and had a son, Adam, who was his deputy during the 19th and 20th years. In the 24th, Adam had an acquittance of all arrears, the county during those two years having been in a state of war.

In the 26th, he had seisin of the Burgage which formerly belonged to David Troit. In the 3rd of Richard, he was charged with £5. for half-a-year's rent of Eaton; this he paid by instalments, and had his quietus in the 6th of John. In the 3rd of John, he had a grant of a piece of ground lying between his house and the cemetery of Saint Nicholas, for which he paid 5 marks.

He had a son Reginald, who, in the 11th of John, paid 40 marks for having in marriage Milisent, widow of Odard, Baron of Wigton.

Adam, son of Enisand, was a wealthy citizen of Carlisle in the time of Henry II. His name occurs in the 28th and 31st years of that reign. In the 2nd of Richard he paid 20 marks for the recovery of the debt due to him from Earl David. He died in the 3rd of John, leaving a widow, Matilda, and a son, Robert. Matilda accounted for 40 marks and 1 palfrey for her dower, and a reasonable proportion of her husband's goods. The following year she was charged with 200 marks, which she admitted she had received from her husband's estate. The same year, Robert, the son of Adam, compounded for the amount of debts due to his father, by paying a fine of 40 marks. These debts amounted to £191. 13s. 2d., making, with the 200 marks received by the widow, £324. 19s. 10d., the personal estate left by Adam, son of Enisand. In the 13th of John, Robert, son of Adam, was fined 100 marks for a transgression.

Allan the Moneyer, who rented the Mines of Cumberland in the reign of Richard, was a resident in Carlisle, as appears by the Roll of the 28th of Henry II. His predecessor, William the Moneyer, resided in Newcastle, where his house was seized by the Sheriff of Northumberland, for the Crown, in respect of the arrears due of the rent of the mines of Cumberland.

PAYMENTS BY THE SHERIFF.

The preceding pages furnish an epitome of the information to be derived from the receipts of the Sheriff. His payments are generally made directly into the Treasury, sometimes into the King's chamber (in camerâ Regis), for the private use of the sovereign. There are, however, numerous instances of payments for special purposes made by authority of the King, some of them possessing considerable historical interest, whilst others are valuable as exhibiting the prices of articles of consumption, or supply, at this early period. Under the latter head may be classed the particulars of stocking the Demesnes and Escheats in the 32nd, 33rd, and 34th of Henry II., the details of the supplies of arms and stores sent to Ireland in the 18th of that reign, and the provision for the garrison of Carlisle in the 2nd of John.

A horse, purchased for the Forester in the 32nd of Henry II., cost £1.

There are frequent entries of payments for the repairs of the castle of Carlisle, and the chapel, mill, bridge, and gaol within its precincts; also, the expenses of maintaining the garrison. In the 19th of Henry II. are some heavy items connected with the civil war, and the defence of the castles of Carlisle, Prudhoe, and Newcastle. In the 1st of John, £20. is paid towards the cost of the garrisons of Appleby, Carlisle, Pontefract, and Bamburgh.

The following items occur of the expenses of Royal visits:—

4th	Henry II.—Corredy prepared for the King's visit,	11	3	0
9th	„ The King's corredy,.....	100	0	0
„	„ Expenses of the King's hunting,.....	0	13	0
23rd	„ Expenses of Prince John at Carlisle,	20	0	0

In the 17th of Henry II., is a payment made to Edward Blundus of £30. for the coronation of Prince Henry.

In the 2nd of Richard, £2. 15s. was paid to Ebrard the Falconer, for the conveyance of the King's hawks.

In the 4th of John, £109. 15s. is paid to Allan Wastehouse, being a year and a-half's wages due to himself and 4 attendants, and the maintenance of 10 dogs, for coursing hares; also, the wages of William the Fowler, and the keep of his dogs. There is a further charge of £8. 12s. 2d., for the purchase of salt, and the expense of salting the venison, together with the expense of sending the dogs to the King beyond sea. Many large payments are made "by the King's brief," without any statement of their purpose. These are probably in discharge of loans previously contracted, thus—

		£.	s.	d.
6th	Henry II.—To William Cade,.....	28	9	7
10th	„ To the same,.....	4	4	7
23rd	„ To Vinus and Moses, the Jews, and others,.....	153	7	9
25th	„ To William Ruffus,.....	100	0	0

Some of these payments are made by the lessees out of the rent of the Mines, and not by the Sheriff. Credit is also frequently given for lead furnished either for the King's palaces at Windsor and elsewhere, or supplied for the works of various churches, both in England and Normandy.

The Westmorland Rolls exhibit many entries of a similar nature to the foregoing.

In the 23rd of Henry II., the Sheriff's account, extending over a period of three years, comprises a large expenditure for reparation and defence of the castles of Westmorland and that of Roxburgh ; the cultivation and re-stocking of the manors, and other necessary outlay. There is also a payment of £40. to Moses the Jew, and others, who appear also on the Cumberland Roll.

In the two following years is a further expenditure in the purchase of stock, and the repairs of the mill at Appleby.

In the 5th of Richard, 60 marks were advanced for wages to the knights and servants at Windsor ; £1. 16s. 8d. for conveying the King's horses from York to London ; 13s. to the engineer employed upon the works (Hericionem et Breteschias) at Doncaster ; and £1. 9s. 6d. for conveying the Tallage, for the King's release, from York to London.

In the 6th, 10s. is applied to the repairs of the wall of Appleby ; and the year following. 8s. towards repairing houses there.

In the 10th, 40s. were expended on the castle of Appleby, and 1 mark on that of Brough.

In the 1st of John, we find repairs of Brough Castle, £4. ; of Pontefract, £3. 6s. ; and similar entries as to Appleby and Brough for succeeding years.

In the 2d of John, 9 tuns of wine and 100 bacon pigs are purchased for the supply of the garrison, which cost, including carriage, £28. 16s. 8d.
